Editorial

In today's society, the educational system is playing an increasingly important and much wider role. A vital part, and undoubtedly the basis of this system, is the School. The value of the educational system must lie in its ability to equip the individual for life in the outside world.

We live in an age of furious pace and great technological progress and inevitably, with this, comes change. Many educational institutions have tried to resist change but this is not possible if they are to meet the needs of industry, the economy and society. With unemployment rife, and the increasing problem of securing work, individuals are seeking some advantage which will impress employers. As a result, we are being educated to continually escalating standards. As our standards become higher, there is a tendency to place less emphasis on the basic requirements of our education, the three 'R's. It is evident that we must first have a sound grounding before we proceed to the more specialised subjects and teachings.

Some external standards are necessary in secondary education, to give both employers and tertiary institutions an opportunity to gauge individuals academically. For those who are not academically capable of reaching these standards there should be some alternatives. It is not sufficient for schools to simply educate the intelligent and pass them on to a university or similar institution where a degree or diploma is obtained. In Australia today, many degrees and diplomas are becoming rapidly useless as many of those who obtain them are unable to find employment in the field in which they have been educated. We are now witnessing a widening gap between the unskilled worker and the professional. Surely with such a wide gap to fill we need a diversification in our schools to prepare students for a much larger variety of occupations. Job satisfaction and pride should be available not only to those of high intelligence, but also to those who are prepared to apply themselves to other occupations.

Fortunately, the majority of schools are awakening to the present situation and are starting to take steps to restructure their courses. Schools are now encouraging students to choose a wide range of subjects and are thus levelling some of the academic mountains that have dominated educational horizons.

In many ways an individual's education resembles a jig-saw puzzle, where the pieces must fit together before the final product emerges. Schools should be a rewarding experience in learning and achievement and this can be attained if the educational system is structured to meet the needs of the individual. With greater diversification of subjects and tailoring of classes to fit student requirements, it is possible to create a new spirit and to give school more meaning.

Headmaster's Report

DR. K.G. TREGONNING

May I preface my remarks by paying tribute to Mr. Q.R. Stow, the Chairman of the Board of Governors, who is still convalescing from an illness, but whose imminent full recovery is assured. Hale has been most fortunate to have had at its helm such a sagacious and conscientious Chairman, who has done wonders for the School in so many ways. It typifies the strength of independent schools, when a man of such prominence and under such pressure of work, can enthusiastically remain involved. All of us will welcome him back next year.

The School welcomes with pleasure the Chief Justice, Sir Francis Burt, as its guest this evening. Sir Francis is linked through his family to this School in many ways, not least by illustrious forebears who once were boys here and who then from high positions of state served not merely the School but the colony as well. An example I commend to you all. Lady Burt also has a very strong Hale association. She was one of those lovely West Perth girls who made dancing lessons when I was at Hale so delightful, and it was heart-breaking when, as the sister of two brothers who were my schoolboy friends at Hale who indeed I had assiduously favoured with by football and other favours, she went off and married an Old Guildfordian. Her late father, Brigadier Lloyd, was the Colonel of the West Australian Battalion that fought at Tobruk. Many Old Haleians were in that Battalion, so too Bishop MacDonald, of our Board of Governors; and the Tobruk Trophy, one of our school trophies, was presented to us by the Colonel's widow, a dear and gracious lady who although unable to be present nevertheless I am sure shares our pleasure in welcoming her daughter and husband here tonight.

In the final outcome, Chief Justices and others of that profession judge characters rather than events. We do well, as parents and educators often obsessed with events — such as passing examinations or winning at sport — to remember that this is not of the essence of our task with those in our charge, but that as both parents and educators, our purpose supremely is to develop character.

Sir Francis has fought through a war, in which highly qualified doctors carried out lethal experiments on people of another race, in which trained engineers gassed old women and children and high school graduates, bashed the brains out of the skulls of their innocent concentration camp victims. They all received an "education" in which character development was ignored: and I fear that it is still half forgotten as an educational, indeed, as the educational objective here today.

The crowded courts over which Sir Francis presides, and the weakness and slackness of this selfish indulgent society, suggests that what was standard once in Germany many not be that foreign either here in 1977 Australia.

It is hard to write a syllabus, or give space in the timetable for character. It is much easier to organize physics or football. I have been reading educational journals for many years now. I can not recall an article on character: yet a community full of qualified men and women but without strength of character or firmness of standards, is basically not as educated in the true sense of the word, as an illiterate community that is honest, strong in its ways and loving in its relationships.

Independent schools (and good Government schools when they have the chance) tackle this problem of character in many ways. Perhaps in this, the discipline of a school is one of the most important. There are two main aspects of this, as we try to operate it here. There are rules, at the beginning externally imposed and enforced. It is of increasing difficulty to enforce some of the school rules, for there are many over-protective parents who most unwisely try to shelter their son from the results of any misdemeanour, or who collaborate with him to hide or deny the offence; who indeed attack the school for trying to enforce its rules. School offences are minor mostly, it is not the event but the character that is affected, for a boy not educated here to a sense of discipline and control could one day go on to face Sir Francis; and not on a speech night either. And really, both school and parent have failed. But these would be the minority and the majority of parents and boys, would accept that a good school is one where there are standards that are enforced without fear or favour.

As well as rules, which gradually as a boy grows older become self-imposed rules, rules of conduct, work and attitude and service, a school also endeavours to develop character through its relationships. Again it is not part of any syllabus, but a good school endeavouring to educate humanely should always strive for a code in which respectful, understanding tolerant and sympathetic relationships flourish. Between staff and boys, this should always be and it should be reciprocated. And between staff as people and between boy and boy. Do unto others as you would they do unto you, as someone once said.

This in no way suggests that discipline should be slack, transgressors should be punished, but a code of fair and firm behaviour expeditiously enforced where necessary, and courteous relationships between all is part of the character building a good school should provide.

The good relationship between staff and boys, and boys and boys, can be established, indeed must be established, in the classroom; but also in the numerous extra-curricular activities of a school. Indeed the educational value of sport or chess or music or hobbies of any kind is just that: that it helps character. And we at Hale also attach considerable importance to the development of character by means of another dimension available to us, the adventure programme of Wittenoom.

All over Australia (if only at Hale in Western Australia) independent schools have established adventure outposts and such has been the value placed by others on what we are doing that I have been asked to convene a National Conference on their development next year.

We make much use of Wittenoom, but my enquiries throughout Australia make it clear that others do more, with not merely one year being involved (in our case Year 11) but the whole school. Of course we suffer from the far remoteness of Wittenoom, and whereas in Victoria for example many schools drive on Fridays or Mondays a mere 60 or 100 miles to wild coastline or rugged valley, here we are nearly 1,000 miles away. We need, for the challenge and shaping of our boys, an area remote but accessible, close enough to reach but in an area where adventure and environmental studies can be blended. We hope one day we will find this. Meanwhile we continue with Wittenoom.

We began Wittenoom in 1970, and I well recall flying up there in late 1969, when the opportunity to acquire a small house there first arose. Mr. L.V. Shields, then initiating highly successful biology field camps, went with me and on the flight back we hammered out the basis of what has been the standard programme ever since. Mr. Shields retires this year, after serving Hale most competently and enthusiastically in many capacities, at Havelock Street and Wembley Downs for a quarter of a century.

A school is greatly aided in its efforts at character development by the continuity of staff, indeed this is essential, and Mr. Shields personifies the stability and the dedication of such men who teach as much out of the classroom as in it. He has the best wishes of all at the school on his retirement.

These also go to another long serving staff member who retires this year, Mr. E.R. Prince. Scores of boys have dangled the red herring of "Tell us about Rhodesia Sir" in front of him since he joined us in 1964. But as Senior Science Master, Rowing Master, lover of music and until lately smoker of fat cigars, Mr. Prince has been another good servant of the School, and as is typical of all such masters giving far more than his contractual obligations required. So too Mr. Cyril Shaw, a Senior Maths man, ex R.A.F. and ex D.C.A., whose gentlemanly manner and courteous bearing to the boys almost invariably produced the best from them in return.

These three men now leaving us had balance, as did Mrs. Cook, the dear lady who has loved the little boys in Brine House for so many years, and taught them right from wrong. She and her husband will be sadly missed. One hopes it is the same balance they possessed that as part of character is acquired by the boys here. They may well have greater need of it than their predecessors, with youthful unemployment here to stay. We are initiating steps to help them, but the young of today perhaps more than ever need a firm character as well to help them, to keep them steady and to enable them to face knock-backs, and to keep trying. Australian men and women panicked when Darwin was bombed by the Japanese, and to our national shame ran away while Londoners battled on. I hope this "Pommie Disease" may be catching and that our youngsters will have the character to battle on too.

Not merely from those leaving has an example of character and service been given. The School is most grateful as well to the many staff still remaining and I must express my personal thanks to them all and in particular to Mr. T.D. Hoar, the Deputy Headmaster. His administration and involvement in so much has been most appreciated. And as we prepare for our largest boarder intake ever, of over eighty new boys, I think our boarding housemasters also are entitled to a good holiday. But so indeed are we all.

Throughout the Western World there appears to be something of a lack of confidence about western values. Leaders everywhere seem to be apologising for past acts or present situations; Africa is all our fault, it seems, and Asia too, and in education as in everything else this lack of confidence in old values, this uncertainty about goals seems prevalent.

We at Hale, firmly rooted in the past and convinced of its validity — by far the best basis for continuing development and strength — need share none of that uncertainty or lack of confidence. We question our methods, we change, we cautiously innovate and we strive to win, but we keep before us our true goal which if I may express it in old world language, and cause no offence to the many to whom the adjective has meaning but not belief, is to produce Christian gentlemen.

Captain of School Report

Total involvement is the key to a successful stay at Hale School. Whether it be in the classroom or on the sporting field, if the student does not give one-hundred percent effort he will gain little in return. There are many who go through Hale with the attitude that they are there from nine to three-thirty and that is all. They had little to give or to gain from Hale. Oddly enough, when these boys leave school they realise how much Hale did mean to them or how much it could have meant. On the other hand, we have students who are enthusiastic about all aspects of the School community, be it academic, cultural, or sporting. These boys are the nucleus of a successful school and fortunately we have a good quota of them each year.

There is a tremendous student-master relationship at Hale. I feel the main reason for this is Wittenoom. Talking to students from other schools, it is obvious that they do not believe me when I say that the masters become just as involved in school activities as students. It is, though, a fact! This involvement of both student and master is the key factor in building up a strong 'school spirit'.

The main function of Hale is to give the students a sound basic education and on the academic side we have many fine students and every boy is encouraged to work hard. Two outstanding efforts in the academic field were achieved this year. Neil Taylor has won a scholarship to Germany for six months and Richard Goyder a scholarship to Canada or New Zealand for a year. The top section of our present fifth year should achieve some excellent results in the T.A.E.

There are a number of extra curricular activities at Hale. The Rifle Club, run by Mr. Somers-Vine, is increasing in numbers all the time with practice shoots being held at our mini range. Competition against other schools started later in the year and the boys get tremendous satisfaction from this sport. The Photography Club remained as strong as ever. Our amateur photographers produced some excellent work, evidence of which is seen in the school magazine. The production of the Cygnet is one of the school's major undertakings. The work of Mr. Bairstow and his committee has resulted in another fine record of the year's activities. The Chess Club, run by Mr. Sonntag, is much stronger than in previous years. Of the three teams entered, the 'A' team won its competition and the 'B' and 'C' teams were both runners-up — a very good result for club members. Mr. Coney again ran debating and this year we had two Senior teams and one Junior. Debating is a most worthwhile exercise and it also allows students to participate in interschool activities. The Band must also be mentioned. Their music is now of a very high standard and the Band Leader, Mr. Harvey, is to be commended.

Sport this year was away to a typical start. Hale won the interschool swimming for the eleventh year in succession. The critics had written us off, but on the night our competitors showed great fighting spirit and what a victory it was! Congratulations to the swimmers, to all the coaches, and especially to Mr. Hoad. Mention must also be made of captain, Danny Rechichi, who received honours for his wonderful swimming over the years.

The Tennis players were favourites for the Corr Cup. The team went through the season undefeated and also won the Slazenger Cup. Mr. Edgar, Mr. Bonner and all players are to be congratulated on their thoroughly professional efforts. The top sporting award of honours was again made, this time to Chris Johnstone, for his outstanding performances in tennis. The victory by the younger players in the Herbert Edwards' Cup augurs well for the future.

The acquisition of a new shell gave the Rowers great confidence and the incentive to train hard. The first eight won their race at the Hale Regatta and were a close third in the Head of the River. All rowers gave their best and they are most grateful to Mr. Truscott, all the coaches, and especially Mr. Roger Harrison, for their tireless efforts at the sheds.

The first eleven had a successful trip to Adelaide during January, winning four of its five games and having an excellent preparation for the home season. Mr. Macmillan and Dr. Lill are thanked for their efforts on tour. In the Darlot Cup we finished second, losing by the narrowest margin to Christ Church. The team very much appreciated the time and effort put in by Mr. Gidney. The U/16 A's were undefeated — another good sign for the future.

In May the football team travelled to Adelaide by train. This trip moulded the team into a close knit group and was a major factor in our wins against Geelong College, and Scotch College Adelaide, for the C.D. Fisher Plate. In the Alcock Cup we were third behind joint winners Aquinas and Christ Church. Thanks again go to Mr. Macmillan and Mr. Truscott for time spent on the team.

There was a Hockey revival this year. The first eleven's south-west tour gave them valuable experience and their winning form created great interest in the school. They finished a creditable third and congratulations are extended to Mr. Jordan and the players on their achievements. The undefeated second years guarantee a sound hockey future.

In Squash we entered four teams, the A's finishing second and the other three teams third. The numbers in this sport are growing and coach Mr. Edgar is hoping this sport continues to thrive. In Rugby, Hale were again dominant. In fact with one game to play we could not lose the cup. We could, though, tie with old rivals Scotch for the Brother Redmond Cup and we did, when they were a little better in the final game. Congratulations to Mr. Pontin, Reverend Davis and all the players.

Athletics was disappointing. Our team was not up to the standard of Aquinas and the other schools and we had to be content with seventh. A number did well on the day, but insufficient depth and a general lack of running ability, apart for the distance events, cost us dearly. Christ Church's efforts in coming from seventh in 1976 to third in 1977 shows what can be done and Hale will need tremendous support from all boys next year. The team is most grateful to all coaches and especially to Mr. Biddle for all the time and effort put into training the team.

The one activity that all boys look forward to with tremendous enthusiasm is Wittenoom. Younger students are told stories about this small town and the marvellous area from early in their school days. The stories vary from the height of Town Pool to the width of the road up the Catwalk. This year's "Man in the North" was Mr. Roger Gray, a man of considerable Wittenoom experience and enthusiasm. The venture was its usual great success and all group masters and resident masters are sincerely thanked. One notable absentee from Wittenoom this year, was Biology expert and Millstream regular, Mr. Vic Shields. After twenty five years at Hale he has decided to retire. The 'total involvement' mentioned earlier has certainly been the Mr. Shields story. His dedication to his work and to us all shows what the school has meant to him. We wish a true Haleian all the very best in his retirement. We also farewell two other long serving masters. The important Physics teaching has been Mr. Prince's task since 1964, and since 1967, Mr. Shaw has taught the top stream of Maths students. Their work has been very much appreciated and we wish them long and happy retirements.

On behalf of all boys and especially those leaving Hale, I would like to thank the Headmaster and Staff for all they have done. We say a special thank you to our Housemasters for their help and guidance during the past five years. I also thank the fifth years and the Prefects for their support and wish them all the best for their futures. I hope those returning will be involved in the life of the school. Honest support of all the many school activities is essential if the school is to flourish.

We believe Hale is a good school. The facilities of the school are tremendous, but these are not everything. The friendliness of the school is significant. This makes Hale a successful, independent school, the sort of school we have enjoyed, the school to whom we owe a great debt — a debt we will never be able to repay, but will be conscious of forever.

T.R. GEPP

C.H. Shaw

It is with some regret that the school says goodbye to Mr. Cyril Shaw who along with two other senior members of staff finds the temptations of retirement too much to resist. Throughout his ten years as a senior Mathematics master at Hale many boys have benefitted greatly from his expertise in this very specialised field.

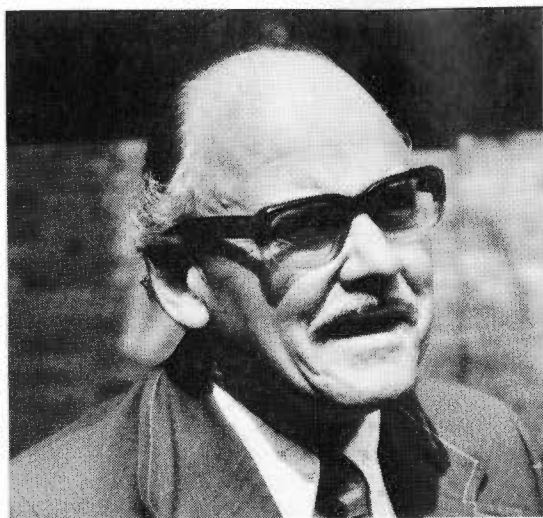

Born in Scotland, Cyril distinguished himself as Wing Commander Officer in charge of a School of Navigation with the R.A.F. throughout World War II. On moving to Perth, Cyril spent a number of years as a Mathematics Master at Scotch College and then moved interstate to Melbourne where he took up a post as an Instructor with D.C.A.

In 1968, he returned to Perth and joined the Mathematics staff at Hale as an Assistant Resident Master in Loton House. Since then, his keen wit and friendly manner have been appreciated by his colleagues and pupils alike.

We wish him happiness and good health in his retirement and hope that Vienna does not keep him from our company too long. The Bosun will be sadly missed from the "poop-deck".

I.B.

E.R. Prince

Eric Royston Prince and his wife and family arrived at Fremantle from Kenya on Thursday 11th June, 1964, to take charge of the Science Department at Hale School, and the following Monday, he started by teaching the first period. He taught Physics "and Chemistry as a temporary measure until the end of the year", and continued to teach Chemistry for the next ten years. He was also Junior Certificate examiner in both Chemistry and Physics. He will be remembered by those whom he taught for his wide knowledge of his subject enlivened by example from his varied career in the U.K., Africa and Australia; in RADAR research, meteorology, and music. It is in this last sphere that he may be best remembered by most boys for his fine voice leading the staff and school in hymn singing at morning assembly. He played the part of the judge in "Trial by Jury" and helped with the production of the musical "Oliver". Other productions by Hale School in conjunction with the girls of Churchlands SHS and St. Mary's School were directed by him. Eric Prince showed his versatility in being master in charge of rowing from 1966-75 during which time the performance of the crews gradually improved; the 1st VIII being last in 1966 and first in 1971. For a time he also coached the 2nd VIII. His interest in sport however was not confined to the river and no Staff versus Boys Cricket Match would have been complete without him as umpire.

One would not expect an active man like Eric Prince to retire completely and he will be spending more time with the West Australian Arts Orchestra as Orchestra Manager. We wish him well and hope he will have much enjoyment using his many talents in this position.

L.V. Shields

Bees in the library, October, 1977. Crisis, a priceless educational asset out of commission. "Call for Vic. Shields". Done — within five minutes the Master has disposed of the bees effectively, and the library operates, the librarians breathe freely once more.

Come 1978 and bees in the library cannot be so swiftly dealt with because the Master will have left; for Vic. Shields a man of many things to many men and boys is to retire at the end of this year after twenty five years on the Staff of Hale. Vic. came to Hale — the Old Hale, in 1952 to teach mainly Phys. Ed., in that well remembered gym in Havelock Street, but also taught History in which he majored at the University of W.A. Later Vic. moved in to build up the Biology Department for the shift to Wembley Downs, returning to University to qualify in Biological Science. He became the first Senior Master of Biology and will be well remembered by his students, many of them now medical practitioners, for the thoroughness and ever practical orientation of his teaching; his insistence upon clear observation and logical thinking. To know Vic. is to share his enthusiasm, to appreciate his fine attention to detail — for there is the enigma. Vic. Shields is a man of many, many talents and a true master of them all, a perfectionist in so many ways.

Many will know of his wide talents within Hale — the diverse academic interests just noted; architect and slavedriver of the Woodwork Room construction project and Havelock Street; adjutant of 10 Flight Air Training Corps R.A.A.F.; organiser and chef-delux of many "Biol Camps"; enthusiastic leader of countless Wittenoom Groups so characteristic of Vic. Not for him the drudgery of "town house" but out to Millstream to taste the raw, rugged magnificence of nature as it was meant to be known, almost primeval, untouched, unspoiled.

Fewer will know of his wider talents — outside Hale. Perhaps something of his fishing prowess has filtered through; for Vic. is renowned for pinpointing with uncanny accuracy where the fish are biting — and proving it by lining them in with amazing speed.

Born in Geraldton, Vic. passed his Leaving in the depression when "bits of paper" didn't carry much weight in the job stakes, so he became a miner in the Murchison; later going to the South Seas where among other accomplishments he is reputed to have become an explorer of some note. Top baseball umpire, boat builder, master builder, balletomane, market gardener, army medical corpsman, St. John Ambulance driver — these and many more have seen Vic. Shields play his part in the wider community for so long with dynamic enthusiasm and sincere dedication coupled with an eye for precision, be that through microscope or in measurement of a transom.

Hale in 1978 will miss more than a Senior Master of Biology — it will miss Vic. Shields and all that that means.

Vale Vic.!

Chapel

The return of the Chaplain from twelve months overseas also brought back to our Chapel services of the old familiar pattern — well almost! Boarder's leave weekends now extend to Monday Morning and so the regular routine of Evensong every Sunday night during term has ended. In fact the rest of the old familiar pattern may not survive for very long.

1977 was a year of serious fundamental change in the Church of England in Australia. The Church's General Synod agreed that there is no theological objection to the ordination of women to the priesthood and approved of a new Australian Prayer Book. There is no sign yet of Hale having a female priest but there is considerable pressure being brought to bear on all clergy to use the new Prayer Book — and a new Australian Hymn Book has now been published as well.

It is still legal to use the 1662 services and there are sound arguments for continuing to do so, but it is important that our Chapel prepare boys for the type of worship they will find in their own parish churches. If the Australian Prayer Book gains general acceptance in Western Australia, Hale School will be obliged to use it and so this year could be the last in which the beautiful language of the Book of Common Prayer and the Authorised Version of the Bible were the normal usage in Hale's Chapel.

To judge the effect of Chapel Service is not easy, but we can say that this year the boys did behave in exemplary fashion in Chapel, they joined in all their parts of the service with enthusiasm, appeared to listen with attention and absorbed enough to want to comment about the services in divinity lessons.

A good number of candidates cheerfully attended confirmation instruction and were confirmed by Bishop MacDonald on the 23rd of October, receiving their first Communion at the same service.

Charities

As one of the oldest educational institutions in Western Australia, Hale School, has always been aware of its responsibility towards the rest of the community. In fact, the School Motto "Duty" infers that an involvement in community services is as an essential a part of education as academic and sporting activities.

From the time the School moved to Wembley Downs in 1961 weekly collections of funds were made on a House basis. These collections accumulated under a central School Charities Commission, (consisting of the Deputy Headmaster and a representative from each house), and allocated to various worthy charitable organisations within the community. Generally it has been considered that children's organisations should have priority, but in recent years adult organisations have also been generously supported.

Originally, the collection of charities was based on an inter-house competition with the weekly totals being read out at assembly. This method of collection was quite successful but there was some disillusionment amongst members of the houses who were not made aware of the organisations benefiting from their contributions. Abuses in the methods of collecting funds also became apparent. Senior boys were intimidating younger students to obtain contributions, a practice which caused a lot of ill-feeling. The boarding houses were also felt to have an advantage because their donations were deducted directly from their pocket money accounts.

The system of inter-house competition was finally abandoned at the request of housemasters after an unfortunate incident over the unauthorised publishing of a student magazine. Although the proceeds were to go to charities it was deemed that the material published was not in the best interests of the School and the magazine was recalled and destroyed. The competitive system was then discontinued and although the amounts collected decreased a much more relaxed atmosphere prevailed. Some houses established their own committees and this seemed to be a better arrangement involving more house members.

In recent years the policy of the School has been to encourage the giving of service to the community rather than just contributing financial support. A number of such projects were undertaken by the houses this year:

- Faulkner House's support of the Lucy Creeth Home for Crippled Children.
- Loton House's involvement with the Lions' Ring Around.
- Stirling House's raffle in support of the Blind Institute.
- Wilson House's support of the Profoundly Retarded Childrens Association.
- Parry House's work for the Arthritis Foundation and the manning of a stall at the Royal Show to raise funds.

It is hoped that the initiative and enthusiasm shown by Parry and Stirling will be an example and inspiration for other day houses in the years to come. The experience of working for charities is a rewarding one for any student.

Wittenoom

Hale Wittenoom 1977 began with preliminary setting up by an advance party consisting of Mr. C.P. Bairstow and Year 12 students Brett Audas, Norm Beecham and Tim Oldham. They did much good work organising equipment, establishing the bush camp and also participating in the annual 'Henley-on-Joffre Regatta' in Wittenoom Gorge. Their efforts were much appreciated. Accompanying them and also of much assistance was Mr. Vince Adamo, a long serving member of the school ground-staff, a feature of whose stay was his effort of cooking numbers of huge pizzas in the local baker's oven. Some of them didn't come out quite as Vince wished but they, nevertheless, fed Group 1 for some days.

Group 1 was led by Mr. A.J. Macmillan whose somewhat odd running habits are legendary among the locals. They never know on what lonely stretch of road or at what unusual hour of the day they might come across him jogging along in a bath of sweat. During the group's stay in the bush camp, they undertook some exploration of the upper reaches of Knox Gorge, discovered more cold water and named Shiat Gorge in honour of a Group 1 "mad-bridge" team, who will remain anonymous.

The group mastering of the second group was carried out after a fashion, by the resident master.

Sincere thanks at this stage are due to Mr. Bruce Hoar who accompanied Group 2 to Wittenoom and then took over Group 1 for the last few days of their stay, when Mr. Macmillan had to return to Perth for school football commitments. Group 2 explored Snell Gorge, a picturesque branch of Wittenoom Gorge and were possibly the most filmed Wittenoom group of all time. They also attended the annual Wittenoom 'fun day' held at the race track during which Andrew Berryman ran a strong second in the open 100m sprint and Kim Riseborough and Gavin Marsh ended up the longest last ever witnessed in a wheel-barrow race due to the fact that their barrow had the flattest tyre of all time and kept getting bogged.

Mr. Truscott, well known Wittenoom identity, led Group 3 and also carried out resident master duties while in the town house. That the somewhat complicated staffing arrangements involved with the first three groups posed no problems was due in no small way to the great efforts of the assistant resident master at the time, Mr. Kim (curried sausage) Riseborough, who at times exerted a profound influence on the town and whose performance throughout was in the finest traditions of Hale Wittenoom assistant men. During the term, many comments were heard concerning the temperature (or lack of it) of the water in Knox Gorge. Some of those who 'suffered' would have felt pity for Group 3 who visited Knox in cold drizzling rain. Memorable events of the day included the death of Ken Craig's camera (missing, believed drowned in mud), the discovery of how to get through the water without getting entirely immersed and Sir Reginald Whiting's Knox Gorge Volunteer Fire Fighting Unit.

The schools top(?) geologists arrived with Mr. N.T. Sonntag in the next group and spent an overcast and at times rainy first week in the town house. This failed to dampen their enthusiasm in any way and they pursued their specialist investigations with appropriate vigour. As it was raining on the morning of the Mulga Downs walk and strangely none of the group had brought umbrellas with them, they departed from the town house modelling large modified rubbish bin bags with arm-holes, belts and all — one of the funniest sights seen in Wittenoom on a rainy day for some time. Incidentally the maximum temperature in Wittenoom next day was 13° C, the lowest maximum in the State. During the week in the bush, they visited Marandoo, the exploration camp for the giant iron ore development proposed by the Texas Gulf and Hanwright companies. We are indeed very grateful for the informative tour provided for the boys who were also grateful for the fine lunch they enjoyed at Marandoo.

Group 5 was led by Mr. G.B. Gray and arrived in time to see the end of the bad weather. They were the first to march down Dales Gorge with a view to walking up the length of Dignams Gorge. Unfortunately, time ran out before they could reach the picturesque end of the gorge. However, the trip down Dales Gorge was worthwhile with visits to Gordon Falls, Thing Pool, Budgie Gorge, Top Pool and Swan Pool, names which, apart from the former, do not appear on too many maps of the area.

Mr. Bairstow's Group 6 featured some of the widest varieties of town pool descents (and entries). There were dives, 'Bombies', 'horsies', Fitz's indescribably confused, back-bending entry and Jonny Del Basso who, after deliberating for what seemed like hours over his first jump, followed it with about 20 others. Their stay was also noted for a pre-eminence of soup not necessarily in the cooking, a well-worn Subiaco Football jumper and some efforts not really worthy of the labours of Hercules.

Next came Mr. B.C. Goldsmith's group who gained notoriety for their failure to arrive at Mulga Downs after the compass march. Later, they hotly denied that they were lost claiming that they knew exactly where they were – the only trouble was they were about 15 kilometres from where they should have been. Nevertheless, they showed good sense and had the situation well in hand and the rest of their stay passed without too many untoward incidents.

Mr. 'Mt. Bruce' Greenwell led Group 8 through 'hell and cold water' and some of the more wondrous bush camp culinary delights of the year. They also had their share of showmen. During the descent of Mt. Bruce, the team realised they were being filmed and so turned on some of the most speedy (and masochistic) journeys down the famous slide ever witnessed. They, nevertheless, did a fine job as waiters etc. at a party for the townspeople given by Hale School which coincided with their last day in Wittenoom. It also coincided with a visit from the Deputy-Headmaster Mr. T.D. Hoar, whom I wish to thank sincerely for his assistance in the preparation for the event.

The last group, with Mr. B. Towers in charge, arrived armed with plane tables, theodolites and other survey gear to carry out work involved with their maths course as part of their Wittenoom program. This proved successful and at times quite amusing. On one occasion, they were conducting a plane table survey of the main street of the town which caused considerable interest among the locals. The picture theatre proprietor was worried that they were surveying a site for a drive-in, while other business people were hoping that they were from a mining company and interested in developing the town. A highlight of the group's stay was a successful assault on Dignams Gorge, this time taking gear to allow for an overnight stay which proved to be an interesting experience, to say the least, especially when it was discovered that someone, (it was never really established who), left the food for dinner behind. Wittenoom has never seen such eating as that which occurred when the team arrived back at the bush camp the next day. The group stayed in Wittenoom an extra day to break camp, pack stores away and tidy the town house at which they did a great job.

My first thanks go to the assistant resident masters, Kim Riseborough and Peter Simpson. The smooth running of Hale Wittenoom depends much on their efforts and it is a great job that they do for the school. Hale Wittenoom would not function without the support of the staff at Wembley Downs and I particularly thank Dr. Tregonning, Mr. Hoar and Mr. Truscott in this regard. Group masters are those upon whom the success of each group really depends and this year I was fortunate (as were the Year 11 boys) to have the great team of group masters that I did.

The school's appreciation is also extended to Hancock & Wright, Hamersley Iron, National Parks Board, E.G. & L. McGuire's Wittenoom Tourist Centre, Mr. & Mrs. Jim Hooson of Mulga Downs station, our caretaker Mr. Ted Godwin and his wife and to the people of Wittenoom generally.

Hale Wittenoom 1977 was to me, successful and satisfying and a great tribute to the Year 11 boys whose enthusiasm for the program couldn't help but make it a success. They are a fine group who will disappoint me greatly if they do not make fine leaders of this school in 1978.

ROGER GRAY
Resident Master 1977

After last year's unfortunate occurrence there was a great amount of responsibility placed upon this year's Hale Wittenoom project. The groups were aware that this exercise was to be carried out with the greatest caution, yet not destroying the real adventure and challenge that the Wittenoom experience offers to all those who partake of it.

After being transported in the back of the landcruiser from the airfield we established ourselves in the Hale base in the township of Wittenoom. The initial introduction to the harsh Wittenoom landscape came on the first day with the assault on the Wittenoom Escarpment. After this climb all group members were well acquainted with the spiny spinifex bush. Next on the agenda was the trip up Wittenoom Gorge, visiting the abandoned asbestos mine and various pools scattered throughout this gorge. Spectacular scenery was witnessed as we ventured up Snell Gorge branching from Wittenoom Gorge.

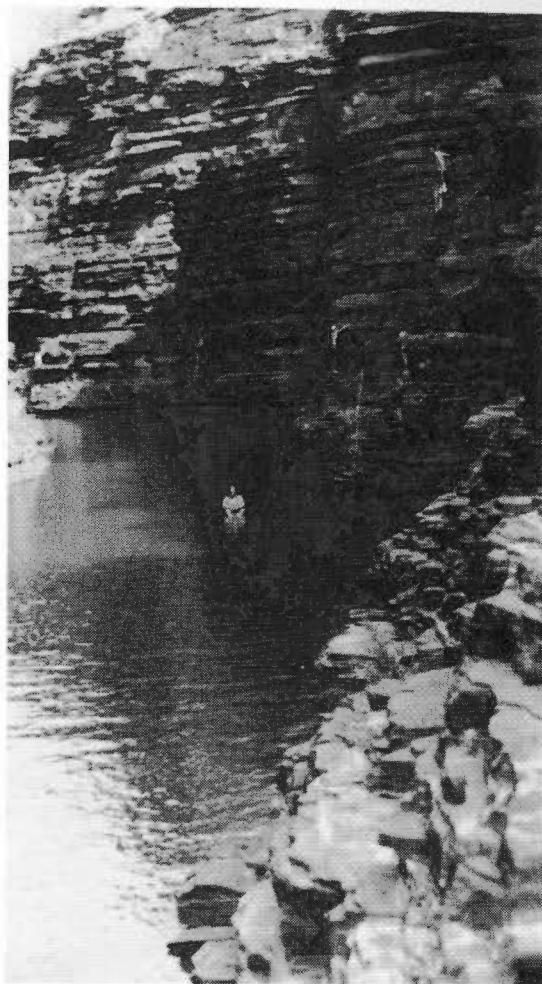

A trip through the narrow, winding Rio Tinto Gorge to the mining town of Tom Price was made available by Pilbara Path Finder Tours. At Tom Price we were able to observe the complex mining operations and be absolutely amazed by the size of the machinery employed (especially the trucks).

Mulga Downs — 14 miles! That's how far each group trekked overland from Wittenoom town through bush to the cattle station quarters. This was a test of perseverance and bushmanship following no track but only relying on the accuracy of the group members with compasses. Perhaps group VII could use a little more proficiency as regards their compass work. This was the first time any group was required to show how well they could co-operate and perform on their own and without the guidance of the experienced resident master, Roger Gray.

After a week had been spent at Hale Base, the group was then transferred via the somewhat vaulted catwalk to the bush camp. Here the group members displayed their true qualities — responsibility, leadership, courage and mateship. Camp life was always interesting and it is believed that many original recipes evolved from the camp meal times.

It was realised that while in the bush camp co-operation was essential for the smooth and efficient running of the camp. There were to be no individuals, but instead, a group as one unit against the rugged geography and severe environment. The camp is situated on Hancock Gorge which was the first gorge we explored. Many of the gorges contained pools of water which, to say the least, were cold. So cold, in fact, that many group members faced incredible perils trying to avoid such pools. A short hike overland using compasses was necessary to get to Joffre Gorge. The groups marvelled at the gorge's spectacular beauty. In many cases the sights had to be seen to be believed. Knox Gorge, for the first year, was traversed both up and down. The narrow waterfall ending off Knox Gorge in to Red Gorge was the main attraction at this gorge. After the stay at the camp, some of the groups were given a choice of how they were to get back to Town Pool before being driven back to the Town house. One choice was the gutsy swim through the long, cold Red Gorge. To all those who accepted this challenge, extreme satisfaction was felt once the gorge had been conquered.

The Wittenoom two weeks will never be forgotten by all students. It is a highlight of Hale School life. Many thanks must go to all group masters and Mr. Roger Gray — the resident master and his able assistants, Kim Riseborough and Peter Simpson. Valuable experience is gained in the bush and in a different environment. All students learn to be independent, and to get along with other people. Friendships between boys grow as the group co-operates as a team.

Buntine in 1977 continued on impressively. Boys of the house have worked well, tried hard in School and House sport and have been involved in much of the School's action. Mr. Macmillan welcomed old and new to the House and announced Les Galbraith as captain with Peter Liddle, Graham Wheeler, Stephen Johnston, Alister Birman and Geoff Lewis as House Prefects. Liddle and Galbraith were made School Prefects.

In sport, the House did well and the determination of all was reflected in our being well placed in all games and second in the Cock House Cup. Buntine and Loton fought out many stirring encounters over the year and we congratulate Loton on their well deserved second successive Cup.

The swimmers led by Liddle and with Agnew and youthful Allen doing well, were third as were the rowers (a fine effort against the boating boarders), as indeed were the Sholl Cup men. McKay's T-Ballers were a fiery second, the junior Volleyballers lost only once and the young Basketballers under Gary Kennedy were also second. The real stars, though, were the undefeated volleyballers. Led by Mengler and Russell, they played grandly throughout and won a magnificent virtual final against Loton. Tennis and Cricket were young sides that tried very hard and all in all it was a term to remember.

Mr. Foss again helped the House during Mr. Macmillan's Wittenoom stay and we thank him very much. The highlight of the term was the spectacular junior Hockey triumph with Hemery, Rogers, Saxon, Brown, Liddle and the others doing extremely well. These undefeated second years guarantee Hale Hockey a sound future. The seniors, under Stephen Holness, tried hard and our overall position in Hockey was third. The footballers had many close games and, typical of our consistency, were also third. Graham Wheeler led the seniors spiritedly while Gary Kennedy was the juniors' captain. Gally (as gutsy as ever) again won his Cross-Country and the boys of the House (some talented, some not so) ran tenaciously on a windy day to finish a close up fourth to the run hungry boarders.

The high spot of the year was the athletics victory. The House trained hard and on the day ran, jumped etc. with great zest and had a tremendous duel with hot favourites, Parry — the final margin being one and a half points and victory coming when the under fifteens won the final relay. We thank Mr. Carey and the House Prefects for organising the training that produced an emotional win.

The House also congratulates its Firsts men; Pete Liddle for being captain of Rugby and vice-captain of Swimming; Huxtable's Cygnet Work; Brownfield for his fine art; Pismiris for Pottery and boys like Davieson, Payne, Allen, Liddle and Steinberg in the band; the Debaters and all the others who entered into School activities enthusiastically.

The fourth years loved Wittenoom, they pay tribute to their group masters, to assistants, Kim Riseborough and Mr. Peter Simpson and especially to Wittenoom ace, Roger Gray.

The House thanks its fifth year group. All have had an impact on Hale and House life and we wish them good luck. Special thanks go to Les and his Prefects. Their time in Buntine ended in traditional style at the fourth Buntine Barbecue where Mr. Macmillan was again thanked for his leadership and involvement.

House Captain: B. AUDAS
House Prefects: B. AUDAS, M. McKELVIE, S. McLARTY, G. MENGLER, A. YENCKEN

Faulkner House has had a very successful year, within both house and school. Mr. Gidney, aided by various assistant housemasters maintained an efficient and happy environment throughout the year for those in the house. Mr. Somers-Vine, who assisted Mr. Gidney during his illness; Paul Abbot, an ex-Trinity scholar and Ralph Shipley formed the backbone of Faulkner's administration.

We were honoured by the presence of another student from the "Rent-a-Pom" scheme, Oliver Wise, who is about to enter Cambridge University. We hope his short stay in our country was enjoyable, his quips and English quotations are not to be forgotten. Tom Briffa took over Oliver's position and proved invaluable in maintaining the well disciplined running of the house.

During the first term, in the inter-house sporting competition, Faulkner came third in the tennis, fourth in the cricket, fifth in the team games and a much improved seventh in the swimming.

Several "Faulknertarians" represented Hale School in the P.S.A. competition. They were: Stephen Marsh in the cricket, Greg Mengler, Michael Kampf and Alistair Yencken in the rowing, Scott Nicholas and Douglas Smith in the tennis, and Craig Hutchison and Kinton Khoo in the successful swimming team. Special mention must be made of Kinton Khoo who was awarded colours and Douglas Smith, who, in second year, became one of the youngest people ever to represent a Hale "First" team.

During second term, Faulkner gained a new fifth year. A cheerful Rhodesian, Richard Bray, adjusted quickly to Australia, apart from the language barrier of colloquial expressions!

Faulkner participated with success in the inter-house competition, winning the Hockey Cup for the fifth year in succession, again winning the Rugby Cup, coming third in the Cross-Country and fourth in the football. "First" team representatives were Stuart McLarty, Stephen Marsh and Brenton Hinkley in the football; Greg Mengler, Duncan and Graham MacKenzie in the Rugby; Michael McKelvie, Alistair Yencken and second year Ean Baird in the Hockey.

Off the sporting field the House has participated in many outings together. The boarders' social, a visit to the cinema and many outings to the national parks were highlights this year.

Individual academic performances worthy of mention are the promotion of David Lefroy, after coming second in his form and Bill Wood's second position in year Nine.

From the beginning of third term the gearing of the Faulkner "Green Machine" for the coming athletic season and the final exams of the year proved slow and tedious but such is the price of success. This year through application and effort, Faulkner has been extremely successful on the academic and sporting fields. For the smallest house in the school to contribute so much is a good example for the younger boys in future years. We hope the boys from Hale and especially Faulkner will contribute to society as well as they have done at School this year.

Haynes

Housemaster: Mr. A.R. TAYLOR
House Captain: R.G. DURSTON
House Prefects: J. RAITER, C.M. JOHNSTONE, R.J. MITCHELL, P.A. NENDICK, C.J. YATES

There were many fine contributions made to school life by the boys of Haynes House this year. Jeremy Raiter did a splendid job as captain of the Hale 1st VIII tennis team which won both the Corr and Slazenger Cups, and then, ably assisted by Chris Johnstone, led the house team to victory in the inter-house competition. Congratulations to Chris Johnstone who received the school's highest award, honours, for his achievements and contributions in tennis. The cricket side finished third and the rest of the house members achieved good success in the team games.

Second term saw Murray Gould appointed captain of the Hale Chess team, and he, with John Manton and Neil Taylor, formed a major part of the team which remained unbeaten. John Manton and Brett Fullarton were appointed to the Cygnet Committee and Eric Ross-Adjie and Stephen Ewing represented Hale in debating.

Although this term was not an outstanding one on the sporting field, the emphasis was on participation rather than on winning. Haynes always fielded as many players as possible and every one was given an opportunity, even if this meant not fielding the strongest side. The Haynes junior football team put up a splendid performance and were not beaten until their clash with Loton in the grand final. Neither the senior football nor hockey teams fared very well, but the junior hockey side finished third and prospects for the future looked bright. Robin Durston and Chris Johnstone both ran strongly in the Cross Country carnival but the results overall were disappointing.

Third term saw active preparation for athletics, but Haynes could only manage seventh. "Jonno" capped off a tremendous year by winning the school U/17 championship, and Mark Edgley did well to be runner-up in the U/14 section.

This year has seen great co-operation from all members of the house and everybody has combined to make the year as productive as possible. Mr. Taylor has been instrumental in the emphasising of the feeling of being part of a team and the fifth years especially would like to thank him for his help and guidance over the years, and to extend best wishes to those students returning next year.

1977 was again an extremely successful year for Loton. Every house member was responsible for a tremendous spirit which saw the house reach and even surpass the heights of 1976.

On the first Friday of the year, eight house prefects were inducted, an indication of the strength of the fifth year. Three of them, Craig Anderson, Richard Goyder and Simon York, went on to become School Prefects.

Loton dominated first term sport, finishing second in the rowing and being well placed in the swimming, cricket and tennis. For the first time we won the Sholl Cup for team games — the result of a mighty effort from all teams. We were also well represented in School teams with Craig Anderson Captain of Boats, Wade Anderson stroke of the 1st VIII, and Simon York starring in the 1st XI with a magnificent 125.

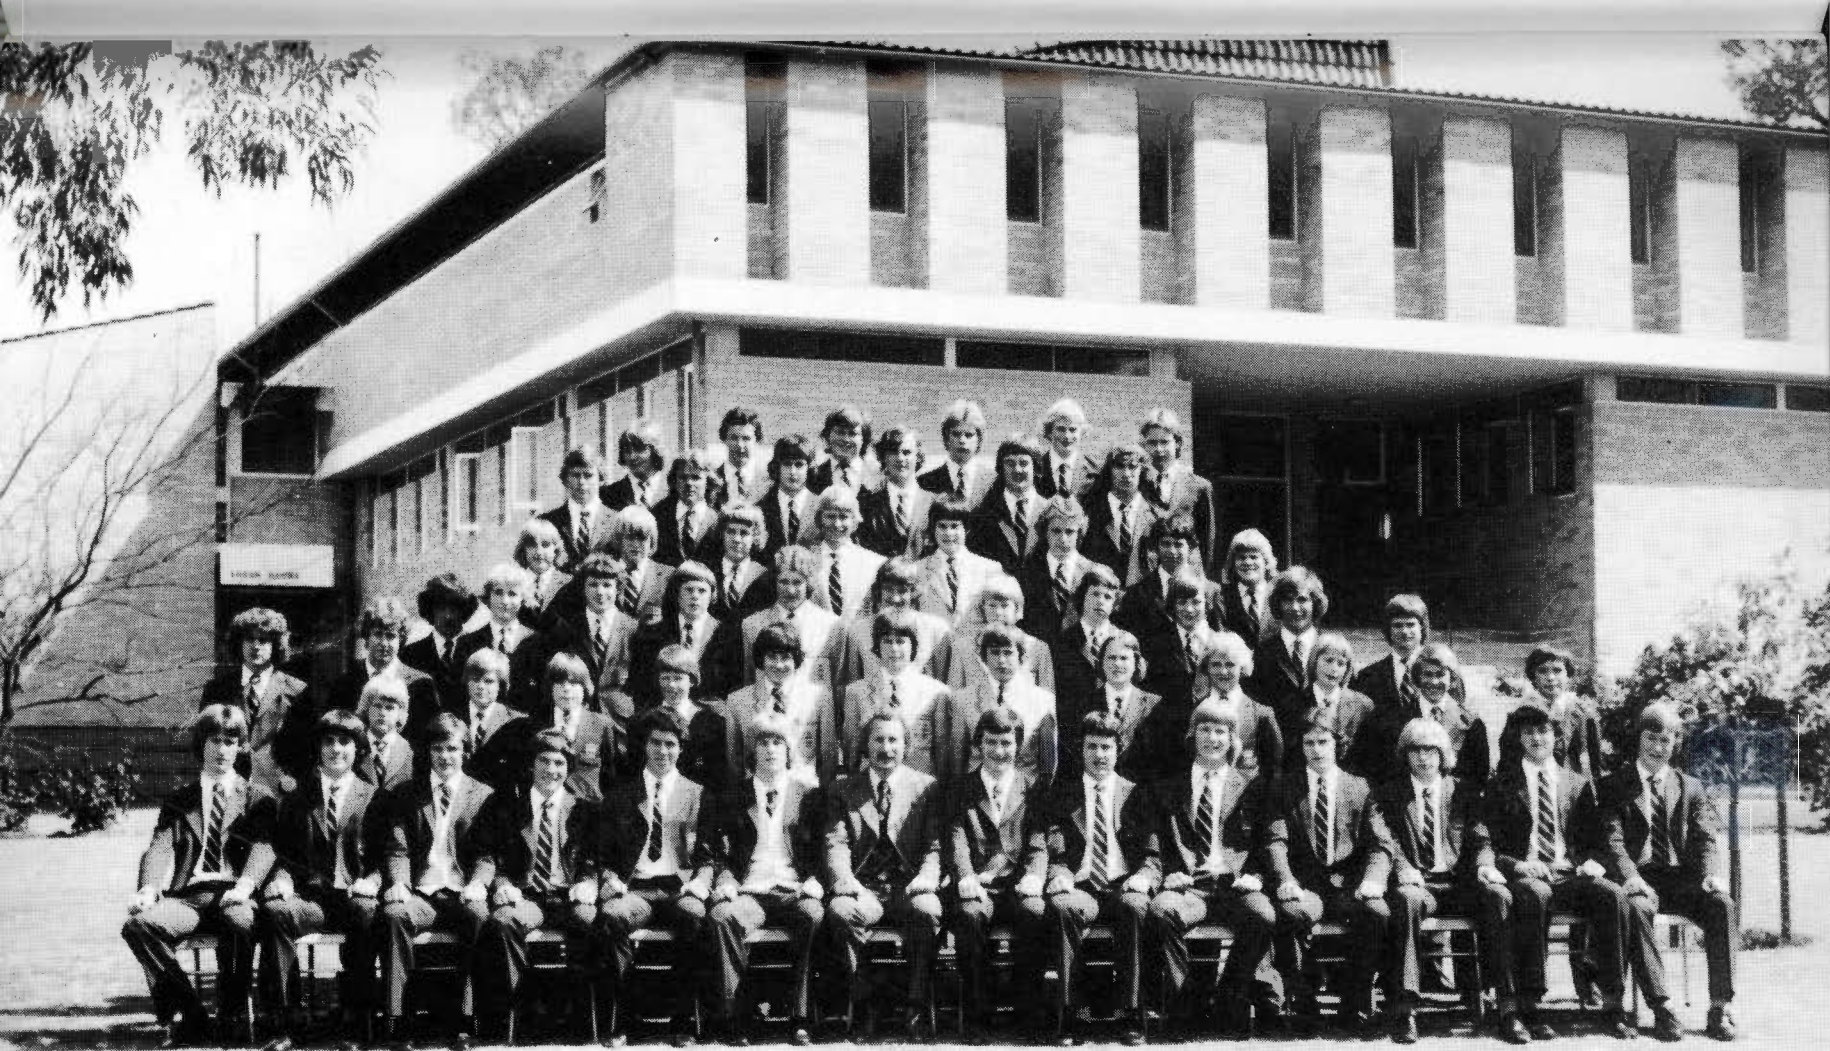

Loton's domination continued into second term with victories in four of the five major sporting events. The senior hockey side were unbeaten, the junior football team showed tremendous grit and determination and their win, coupled with the Senior's great victory, earned Loton the Football Cup for the third year in succession. Many house members were included in School first teams: David Clapin (vice-captain) and David Woodall in Hockey, and Wade Anderson who gained selection to the State Schoolboys Rugby Team were outstanding. All boys ran well to defeat Wilson and retain the Cross Country Cup for the fourth year in succession. This victory gave Loton an unbeatable lead in the race for the Cock House Cup, the most coveted inter-house sporting trophy.

In third term David Tuckey and Jamie Seed were chosen as captain and vice-captain of athletics respectively. All house members trained hard for the athletics in which we competed vigorously, with the open relay team winning the J.C. Taylor Trophy.

Loton was also very active away from the sporting field. The U.B.H. and Thorley Muse continued to exploit the literary talents of the farmers, and over $5,000 was collected for charities in the Red Cross Appeal and Lions Ring-About. Numerous films, barbecues, outings and internal competitions made the year an enjoyable one. 'Club' sessions of darts, bridge and chess were also introduced on Friday nights this year.

Loton can expect a great future if all house members show the same application that was evident this year. This attitude starts at the top and Mr. Towers and his assistants must be sincerely thanked for their interest and enthusiasm.

House Master: R.L. GRAY, M. JORDAN (2nd Term)
House Captain: T.I. OLDHAM
House Prefects: G.M. CHISWELL, A.H.S. FOULKES, G.M. TAYLOR, C. WARNE

Parry's participation in the inter-house competition met with mixed success in first term. The house managed 5th in the G.N. Altorfer Cup, a position we have occupied often in the past and hope to improve on in the future. The Sholl Cup teams, although starting slowly, with more experience and continued enthusiasm improved their position and finished 4th. Outstanding were the senior basketballers led by Chris Warne. The tennis team played with determination and the rowers worked hard to finish fifth.

The cricket team proved the surprise of the term. Through the efforts of 1st XI players Craig Temby, who captained the house side, and Chris Foulkes, and solid performances from the less recognised cricketers, the side remained undefeated until the last match of the season.

Towards the end of the term a number of senior house members spent a rainy Sunday morning door knocking for the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, collecting over $300 for this worthy cause.

Perry Short also earned a trip to Canberra sponsored by the Air Force.

As Mr. Gray was resident master at Wittenoom this year, Mr. Jordan became house master for second term. Parry's participation in the winter sporting competition was marked by enthusiasm rather than success. The junior Hockey team led by Michael Hallam which finished third was the only team to show any prowess. In the inter-house cross-country we finished fourth with the under 16 runners outstanding.

Second term finished with all year elevens and Mr. Gray back from Wittenoom in time for exams. The term in the North was an enjoyable and successful one and all Parry members seemed to revel in the environment and were prominent participants of their respective groups.

The house wishes to thank Mr. Jordan for a difficult job which he accomplished successfully. His cheerful but firm control in house matters was appreciated by all.

Third term opened with a revolutionary charities idea — selling icecream at the Royal Show. As expected there was no lack of volunteer vendors, and their efforts made it a great success, raising over $1,000.

In the hope of extending our run of athletics successes, Parry underwent a strenuous training programme in preparation for the big event. In a day which was closely contested throughout, Buntine eventually defeated us by 1½ points for first place; surely the closest margin ever. Every house member tried his best and the closeness of the competition emphasised the importance of the efforts of everyone in the house.

Ian Chiswell, Richard Blackman and Mark Kent were members of the 1977 Cygnet Committee, giving us a good representation in the publication of the school magazine.

With the final exams ended the 17th year of Parry House. The fifth years wish the House the best of luck in years to come.

T.V. GREENWELL

1977 began with Mr. Greenwell taking over from Mr. Poake as House Master. Our gratitude must go to Mr. Poake for his tireless efforts in leading and organising the house both on and off the sporting field for the past five years.

Riley began its sport activities on an encouraging note when the swimming team, led by Danny Rechichi and supported by squad swimmers Geoff Turner, Steven Morris, Michael Brand, Scott Arbuckle and John Williamson, finished runners-up to Stirling by less than 20 points. The tennis team, captained by 1st VIII player, Danny Breckler, finished a close fourth as did the cricket side with 1st XI players Sandy Home and Brett Farmer. Rob Lubout's rowers were eliminated early and the baseballers, basketballers, and volleyballers finally finished sixth. The efforts of house members were not limited to sport alone in this term. Evan Samuel excelled in the Senior "B" debating team and James Atkins was a capable member of the Junior team.

Second term saw Riley determined to continue the success that had been achieved in first term. The Senior football team, without 1st XVIII players Steven Shenn, Sandy Home, Brett Farmer, John Thew and Steve Mumme, finished fourth while the Junior side managed sixth place. The hockey side led by Quentin Richards fared slightly better in finishing third whilst the Juniors ended in fourth spot. During the term there was also a seven-a-side rugby competition in which Riley, despite the efforts of 1st XV members, Andrew Clapin and Evan Samuel, lost their first match to Loton by six points. Riley's performance on the day of the cross country could be equated with the weather conditions — mediocre to say the least. Ignoring the rain Steven Morris and Tim Caporn ran well in the U/15 race and deserve a special mention.

At the end of second term Riley was sorry to see the departure of Danny Rechichi — we thank him sincerely for his leadership in house activities. Sandy Home was appointed house captain for third term.

The house tackled athletics training with enthusiasm in third term. Much of this endeavour can be attributed to Mr. Greenwell who was always seen leading his charges in their various activities. Riley was well represented in the School athletics team and John Morrison showed great ability in winning the U/15 School Championships.

During 1977 charities were collected by Ric Hoad and the small personal donations will all be appreciated by worthy institutions.

As the fourth years begin to take over the responsibility of leading the house, Riley offers its thanks to Sandy Home, and Danny Rechichi, Mr. Greenwell and the prefects for leading the House so well in 1977.

Wilson

Housemaster:	Mr. R.C. TRUSCOTT
Assistant Housemasters:	Messrs G.P.J. DENT, I. THOMPSON
House Captain:	J.R.B. COWAN
House Prefects:	D.W. DENT, A.C. DOHLE, E.A. GARDINER, E.J. HILL, C.O.R. YONG

Wilson House began the year with the now customary trip to Rottneest Island which enabled the boys of the House to settle into boarding life after the long holiday and the newcomers to get to know one another.

Despite the low numbers compared to the day Houses, Wilson competed admirably in first term sport. The tennis team lead courageously by Austin Dohle was runner up in House competition while vice captain of School Rowing Ted Hill led the House rowers to a hard fought fourth place on regatta day.

Inter-house swimming was a major event on the sporting calendar. Although the results were not entirely in our favour the training programme initiated by Frank Hamersley was tackled with great enthusiasm.

Several newcomers to the House performed well in first term sports. Gary Fletcher gained a position in the first eight tennis side with Peter Hanlon representing the School in the swimming "inters".

The beginning of second term saw the start of further efforts on the sporting scene. The House supplied some ten members of the various first teams competing in the P.S.A. competition.

While the fourth years traversed to and from Wittenoom the House continued to operate smoothly as a whole.

After being runners up in the seven-a-side rugby competition, Wilson finished off the term with a second place in the cross country competition. Special mention must be made of Paul Thomson, Stephen Dent and Gary Fletcher who were some of the many who ran well on the day.

After examinations the House had a night at the movies in town and a picnic at Lesmurdie Falls concluded the term.

Wilson House did not spend all the time, however, on outings and preparing for sporting contests. Many boys gave up their time to sell raffle tickets for the Royal Flying Doctor Service.

The final term of 1977 brought mixed feelings. Some boys were relieved that their school days were fast coming to an end. Others, by far the majority, were saddened that the many happy times would be left behind. Third and fifth years especially leapt into their study programmes for the forthcoming Junior and TAE examinations.

During third term the boys trained hard for the Inter-house athletics and fought hard for their position on the day. As last year a House Golf Championship was held, this year at the Wembley Golf Course followed by a successful dinner for the competitors at the 'Bullseye' restaurant.

However, sport, work and House spirit do not alone make a House a success. Competent administration by Housemaster Mr. Truscott and assistant masters Messrs. Dent and Thompson kept the House running smoothly under any circumstances. The assistant masters are to be congratulated on their efforts while Mr. Truscott was away with a group at Wittenoom. The boys owe a lot too to Mrs. Thomas and seamstresses Mrs. McCarr and Mrs. McCaw who completed the Wilson House "family" and did much to contribute to the happy atmosphere experienced in the House.

As a final word, the House Captain Johnathon Cowan, Mr. Truscott and the staff wish the boys leaving the House the best for the future and to those returning a successful year in Wilson in 1978.

Junior School

The Junior School of Hale has functioned on all two, four, six, eight or twelve cylinders during the year 1977. (Read which ever number you drive.) As usual, things have changed as all things must, and under the careful guidance of the Headmaster and the Board of Governors, as well as a very active staff, they have changed for the better.

The most notable change has been the construction of the long awaited Library and Resource Centre. Full use of this will be made from 1978, when I'm sure Mr. Cardell-Oliver and his team will have everything ready to go. Several mothers have offered their time to do the necessary smaller tasks, which will free the Librarian to spend more time with the children who are in the Library for research, library education, own reading, discussions, debates, coloured television presentations, plays, puppet theatre activities, listening skills, cassette listening etc., etc. Supervision in all cases is a must!

Other changes will be mentioned during the class activity reports following.

Grade One with Mrs. Hills have moved from the first day 'howlers' to the end of the year 'know alls' and mothers and dads have to put up with "But Mrs. Hills said . . ." for the first time. Parents have to be broken in as well as the off-spring. Thanks must be given to the considerable interest shown by all the parents of the boys in this grade.

Grade Two has been ministered to by Mrs. Hamilton once again, and a very enquiring class they are too. It is a pleasure to enter their room and see at a glance the care and pride they have of the 'daily' home, and Mrs. Campbell's Grade Three also enjoy a varied and interesting school day. Several uses have been made of the School Toyota Bus on trips. Brown's Dairy, City Dry Cleaners, Bakewell Pies, and Paul's Icecream factory have endured their prying eyes. An additional subject has been added by Mrs. Campbell — cooking! Some cakes, baked apples and omelets turned out very well indeed.

Mr. Sweet changed his teaching skills for what he believed — a rest — this year. Instead of Art and Science with the whole Junior School, he took Grade Four, and has kept them extremely busy. In conjunction with the Social Studies they visited 'Woodbridge House', Guildford, Perth Old Gaol Museum, East Perth Cemetery, Fremantle Maritime Museum and toured Fremantle. The boys made a video film about the history of Hale School. It was called 'Our School 119 Years'. The boys filmed and visited the old Havelock Street School. Mr. Mill received permission from the Department to give a guided tour of the buildings and grounds. The old oval at King's Park was visited and the boys examined the surround to the Cloisters. At School a group of boys, using video interviewed Dr. Tregonning and Mr. Mill. Much was learned about early life at Hale School.

Mrs. Powell in second term and Miss Huxtable in third term (third year assistant teachers) were of valuable assistance and arranged many interesting activities. The boys baked a cake and made butter. A trip to Rottne is planned for the end of term.

Grade Five, under Mr. Haskett, helped by Mr. P. Williamson in the third term, (an Old Haleian) worked hard to extract as much work as possible from them.

A kite display and competition was held in conjunction with Grade four as part of a creative writing lesson. The competition was won by Nigel Withers — runner-up was Timothy Carter.

Material for a fort was bought by the Parents and Friends Association to replace the climbing tree that had to be removed when the Resource Centre was constructed. The fort is of treated logs, and should last many years. On open day the boys played songs on their recorders. All boys are learning the recorder as part of their normal weekly class lessons.

The weaving craze swept through the class and many fine tapestries with intricate designs were done by the boys — special mention of the work done by Guy Thompson and Christopher Pontin as being quite outstanding. Grade Six with Mr. McLean had a few highlights as well.

Grade Seven was split in to two classes once again this year, Mr. Holmes with the first group. Several interesting activities including trips to King's Park to see Queen Elizabeth II, to the Concert Hall to see and hear the W.A. Symphony Orchestra play, Mr. Fleay's farm at York, and a cultural festival in the Hale School Hall, in which the boys contributed to the massed choir and the band. A stamp and coin club had regular meetings — President Scott Brandreth. The second sevens took part in most of the above activities as well.

Mr. Heibner took over the Art and Science for the year from Mr. Sweet, and several trips were enjoyed by various grades. The Zoo (Grade 7) for Science and Art sketching, The Old Mill (not the master in charge of Junior School as was suggested either) by Grade 6, Lake Monger for a bird study by Grades 1 and 2. The birds were fed by the boys, but quite a quantity of the stale bread disappeared down human throats, much to our amusement. Considerable use was made of T.V., films, film strips, etc. when dealing with Science topics. Grades 5, 6 and 7 went to the Senior School for work with the microscopes and thanks must be expressed to Mr. Shields and Mr. Lupton for enabling us to use their laboratories.

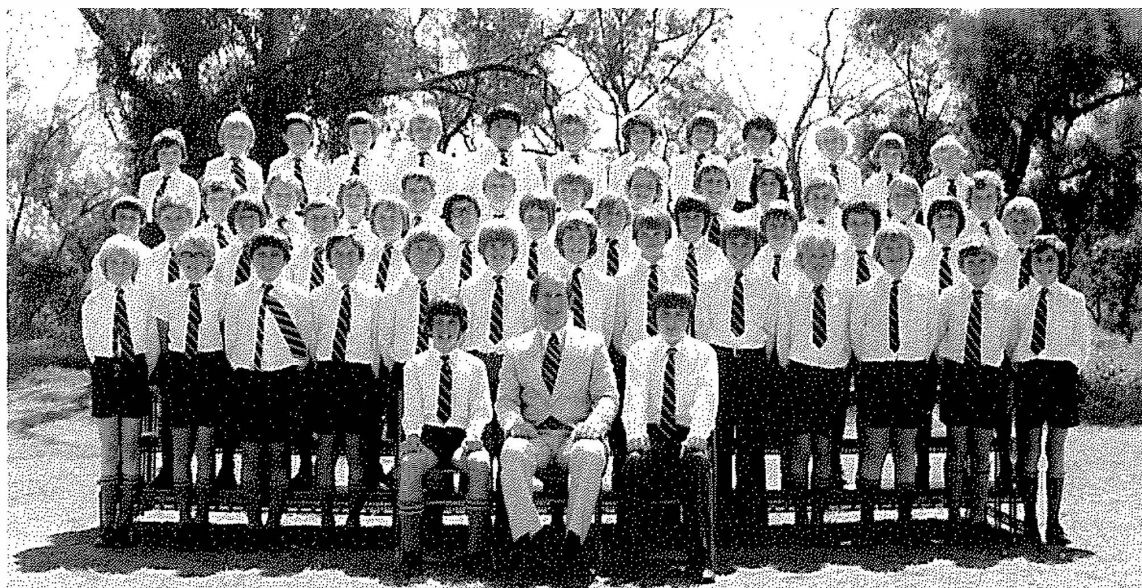

JUNIOR SCHOOL EXCURSION

During the first term holidays a party of boys under the supervision of Mr. & Mrs. Mill and Mr. McLean undertook a seven day educational excursion to South Australia and Victoria. After an initial delay caused by the air-traffic controllers strike, the group flew to Adelaide. They then travelled by coach to Geelong via the coast route and returned to Adelaide by the inland route. Overnight stops were made at Adelaide, Mt. Gambier, Warrnambool, Geelong, Ballarat and Nhill. Highlights of the trip were the undisturbed beauty of the Coorong, the grandeur of the natural arch of London Bridge, the Rain Forests of southern Victoria, the granite landforms of Hall's Gap and, above all, the re-creation of by-gone ages at Kyrall Castle and Sovereign Hill. All in all, the excursion proved a most rewarding experience for those who took part in it.

CHOIR

The choir has been working diligently all year. We sang for the parents on Parents Day and also provided half of the Hale Junior contribution to the Interschool Arts Festival in second term. We have been asked to sing at the Annual Silver Chain Fete in November and also at the Chapel Service for the boys leaving school. Our plan for Speech Day is to sing carols to accompany a Nativity play. Thanks must be given to Mrs. Gladstone for all her hard work with this year's choir.

After such a busy year, I'm certain the boys will enjoy their Summer Holidays. Mr. Mill and the staff of the Junior School, wish everyone a pleasant break, and a return in 1978 refreshed.

Brine House

After a seventeen year association with Hale School, Matron and Mr. Alex Cook will leave at the end of this year to enjoy a well earned retirement.

Mrs. Cook joined the domestic staff at the dining hall around the time the school started at Wembley Downs in 1961. She was asked to take over as Matron of Brine House in 1970 and it was the good fortune of the school that she consented.

Since that time she has been mother, guardian, confidant, shepherd and comforter to several hundred boys who began their boarding days at Hale in Brine House.

Many will recall the first agonising weeks being away from home for the first time, but those who started at Brine will remember how the wrench was cushioned by the sensitive qualities of Matron Cook's understanding and guidance.

An inestimable bonus to the Junior Boarding House over the last 8 years has been the quiet strength of Mr. Cook. His sincerity and dignity have added immeasurably to the spirit and stability of the House.

Together Mr. and Mrs. Cook have given Brine House, and Hale School, a quality of service which is hard to define, although one was always aware that their actions were prompted by the highest sense of moral responsibility toward youngsters whose ideals and principles were still very much in the embryo stage.

We extend our gratitude and thanks to Lin and Alex Cook and wish them a long and fulfilling retirement.

Numbers have again risen this year. According to recent statistics Brine House is the third largest Junior Boarding House in Australia, and has almost double the population of the next largest in W.A.

Relatively large numbers are a mixed blessing but with the capable help of Mr. Walsh and Mr. Tuckey this year we've managed fairly smoothly.

First term is a difficult one for most. The majority of the House population is comprised of boys who are boarding for the first time. It takes a while to settle into a new environment, adjust to new friends and schoolmates, and learn to live within the framework of rules which are, of necessity, more rigid and demanding than those at home.

SPORT

Swimming is a regular feature of first term activities. Azman Moore was Champion Boy in the 10 years of age group; Chris Woodall was runner-up in the 12 year olds.

In second term the boys continued their tradition of supplying a strong representation in the junior Rugby teams and Trigg Craig topped off a good season by winning the Most Improved Trophy.

A new innovation this year was the formation of a hockey team to play in the Old Modernians Junior Competition on Saturday mornings. Brine House contributed 7 members to this team: Chris Woodall (captain), Azman Moore, Tim Collins, Rohan Smith, Tony Reichelt, David Richards and 'Bucky' Sewell. Needless to say, with such a strong representation of boarders, we won the competition and at the end of the season defeated a team comprised of the best players selected from the remaining teams. A great performance!

Congratulations to all members of the team and many thanks to Mr. Biddle who organised, transported, coached, umpired, 'mother-henned' and inspired the team to many fine performances. It was a unanimous decision to vote Mr. Biddle an honorary member of Brine House.

Third term started well with Rocky breaking the 10 years High Jump record. Naturally, his style is distinctive and, if his head can withstand the continued punishment, he should do well in the Interschool competition. Congratulations to Tony Reichelt who was Open Champion at the Annual House sports.

Shortly, the annual Brine House table-tennis, chess and tennis championships for 1977 commence. Many are anxious to prevent 'Didi' Richards repeating his performances of last year when he won all three sections and 'hogged' all the chocolates.

A highlight for the House this year should be the trip to Rottneest during November. We'll all camp out and if Lance Staines can keep his Werewolves under control it should be a great weekend.

As the end of the year approaches we've all but forgotten the traumas of first term. By this time the friendships which have developed among the kaleidoscope of personalities are firm and lasting. We've found, too, a toleration of the other fellow's point of view, no matter how different, and by degrees, we've learned to live together amicably. These, surely, are some of the rewarding features of living in a close community such as Brine House. Both will stand those going to the Senior Boarding House next year in good stead.

We wish them well for the future.

On behalf of all the boys in the House I'd like to thank Matron and Mr. Cook, Mrs. Donnelly, Mr. Walsh and Mr. Tuckey for their efforts during 1977.

Music

1977 was a good year for music. During first term the inaugural Independent Schools Music Festival was held at Hale. Over two hundred musicians from Independent Schools met to form five bands. These bands ranged in standard from beginners to advanced. Rehearsals took place throughout the day with lunch and a barbecue tea being provided. An informal concert in the evening was attended by parents and friends of the participants. The success of the day was such that a similar festival will be held next year with P.L.C. as the host school.

The Parents and Friends dinner held in second term provided an opportunity for the Senior Band to perform. Music was played during the evening and was well received by those in attendance. The Junior School Band and Choir made quite an impression at the Junior School Art Festival. The Band performed for fifteen minutes during which time a trumpet trio and a very expensive drum solo were highlights.

Flute tuition has been introduced this year. Under the guidance of Mr. Neil Fisendan three aspiring flautists have made good progress. We look forward to hearing and seeing this popular instrument in the Band in the future.

DEBATING TEAM

Front Row: E.M. Ross-Adjie, D.S. Ellis, S.R. Ewing.

Debating

1977 was a successful year for Hale School debating. The enthusiasm showed by many new boys has shown that the field of debating is receiving a significant amount of long overdue support.

The Junior Team, consisting of S. Hawkes, N. Aitken, and J. Atkins, unfortunately had a degree of difficulty handling the increased times that debaters were required to speak for this year. This failing can be regarded as quite understandable, as not many 1st or 2nd years can collect the courage to stand up before an audience and speak for five minutes. Because of this difficulty the Junior Team did not win many debates. But with a little bit of experience, and the promise which they have already shown this year, the Junior Team will undoubtedly make their presence felt in the future.

The Senior 'B' team, consisting of D. Luketina, M. Kent and C. Hearne, were the most successful of the Hale teams this year. They managed to win convincingly four debates out of a possible six. The promise which they have shown this year proves that Hale will be ably led in debating in 1978.

The Senior 'A' team, consisting of E. Ross-Adjie, S. Ewing and S. Ellis, faced difficulties this year of a different sort. We had a problem of finding amongst us a third speaker. The prospect of speaking for twelve minutes was not a particularly inviting one, and hence we tried several combinations. Unfortunately, this switching around, and our failure to find the right combination, took its toll, and the team only managed to achieve three wins out of a possible six. The Senior team was also unfortunate in being on the losing end of several close decisions. Although none of the teams made the finals this year, the valuable experience gained by all debaters in the field of public speaking will undoubtedly stand them in good stead in the years to come.

In conclusion, I would like to thank all the debaters that participated in this year's fixtures, all of whom are not named above. Thanks must also go to the boarders who acted as chairmen, and adjudicators, and to the others who just came along to offer their support and hassle the opposing teams. The School in general must be thanked for the support it has given debating throughout the year. Very special thanks must go to the Debating Master, Mr. Coney for his endless time spent in preparing for the debates and ensuring their success.

Rifle Club

The Rifle Club was expanded this year to include any boy over the age of fourteen and the addition of the younger boys created great enthusiasm among all members of the Club. This year attempts were made to introduce pistol shooting to the school but these ideas had to be shelved because of strict police regulations.

Hale was placed well in both of the shoots held during the year at the newly built Scotch College rifle range. Competition shoots were held in third term between members of the Hale Club over a period of several weeks, and a cup was awarded to the overall winner.

The condition of the range has been upgraded greatly this year with the introduction of new target frames. In addition to this, the grass is beginning to cover over well and it is expected that next year the range will be completely grassed.

Thanks must go to Mr. Somers-Vine, the Master in charge throughout the year, and to Mr. Wise who helped out during first and second terms. Both Masters did a tremendous amount of work helping the newly formed club. Next year snapshooting has been arranged as well as the competition shoots between members and against other schools. In all it has been a very successful second year for the rifle club and hopes are held for an even better third year.

Photography

This year, a large number of junior members joined the Photography Club. The running of the club was taken up by senior members, Scott Ellis, Tim Griffiths and Bret Treasure, with Mr. Somers-Vine providing his services as supervising master.

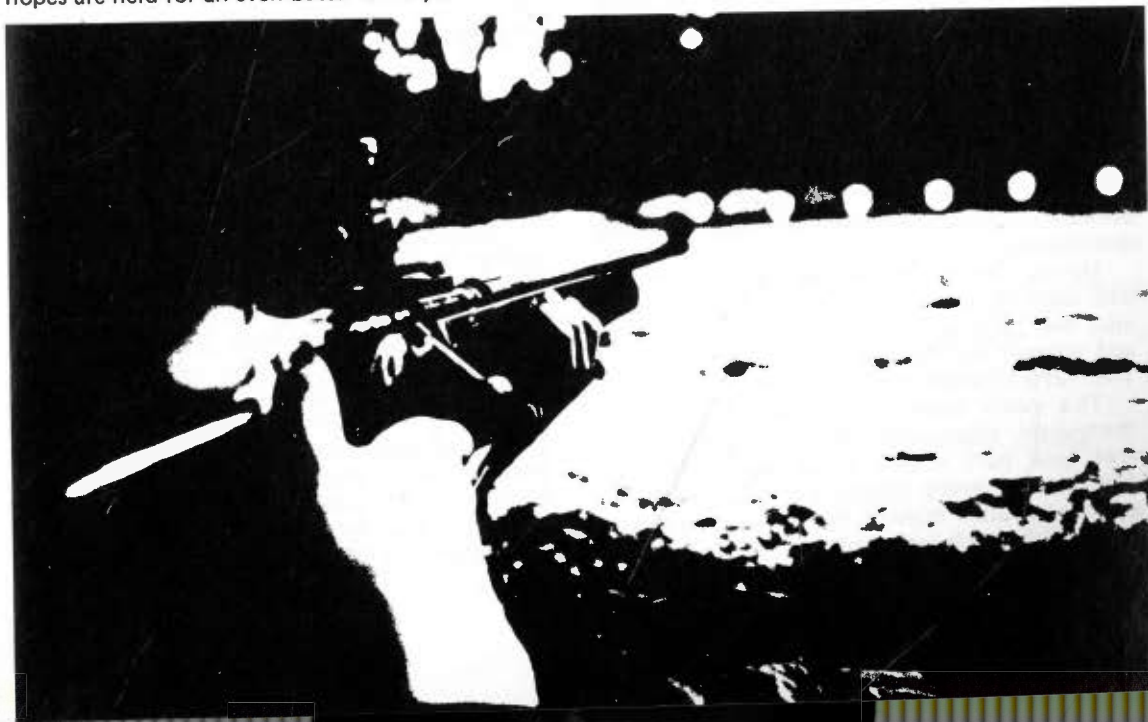

Many of the new members were in need of basic training and the senior members, together with media consultant Ed Jurkiewicz, undertook to lecture the juniors in black and white photography. By the end of the second term, most were printing and developing competently, with some students attempting graphic work.

Several competitions were successfully conducted with McAllister and Griffiths featuring prominently. Tim Griffiths, the club secretary, must be congratulated on winning the inaugural N.R. McDonald Memorial Trophy for portrait work.

Modelling sessions resulted in some good portraits and benefited all members. Other opportunities were provided by an excursion to John Forrest National Park and a senior member excursion to the Royal Show.

Senior members this year devoted most of their time to colour work, experimenting with colour printing but concentrating primarily on slides. For the seniors, the year's work culminated in a high class final term slide show.

The Club is grateful to Mr. Jurkiewicz and Mr. Somers-Vine for the time and effort they put into the Club. It is hoped that next year the photography club will continue as one of the school's most active clubs.

CHess TEAM

Back Row: S.R. Ewing, D.S. Ellis, N.M. Taylor, J.H. Manton.
Front Row: J.M. Storey, M.B. Goold, L.O. Featherby.

Chess

Interest appeared to be high this year in chess and within a very short time the club membership climbed to over fifty members. Thankfully the numbers steadied down to a small core of regular, dedicated players, for the large membership severely extended the meagre resources of the new chess room.

Murray Goold was elected Captain of Chess and John Storey vice-captain. John Storey was also the 1976 winner of the Hale competition and appears the favourite for this year as well. The 1976 middle-school champion was M. King.

This year's interschool competition, in which thirty-eight teams from the Perth metropolitan area took part, proved to be highly successful for the three teams entered by Hale. All players who represented Hale in the various rounds and finals are to be congratulated on a very fine effort. This season also saw several players complete their competition games undefeated.

The Hale 'A' team consisting of Goold, Storey, Manton, Ellis and Taylor proved superior to their competition and rounded off an enjoyable season by winning the Chess Cup for 1977.

The 'B' and 'C' teams both finished an excellent season by coming second in their respective divisions.

With the departure at the end of this year of our top chess players, 1978 will see the almost complete rebuilding of the senior team. The very good showing of the younger players in the interschool competition does, however, indicate a depth of excellence that will stand us in good stead for the future. That is yet to be, but for the moment 1977 can be regarded as a highly successful year for the Hale School chess club. Congratulations must go to all involved.

DARKNESS

Darkness. Complete darkness. Darkness all around. Darkness that kept away the outside, darkness that allowed the body peace. An undisturbable darkness that kept the body in a dream, a peaceful dream, a dream of contentment.

Then the darkness was gone, and a light appeared, a bright light, so powerful that it made the mind ache, blinding my eyes. Seemingly from nowhere it burnt into the brain, causing the peace to vanish, and pain, tremendous pain to overcome the body.

An image swept into my head. I could see and feel it. The speed of the trees coming closer. The wind pulling me. Tugging at me. Forcing me back into the roaring thunder no more than a foot behind me. The blurs of blue, red, white and black, slowly disappearing from the image that shone in front of my face. And the strips of paint racing underneath, blurred into a line, disappearing around the corner like a snake.

The image died and there was darkness again.

Pain, fear and panic suddenly struck me together, causing a feeling of sickness as my mind cleared itself of all images, and the harsh reality surrounded me, all my body sensing what had happened except my eyes that were still blinded by the harshness of the light.

I recognised the ringing in my ears, getting louder and louder, the high pitched screech that had deafened me only seconds before, making my brain feel like contracting with the stinging vibrations. The odour of burnt flesh and smoke, seeping into my nose and mouth, choking me, making it hard for me to breathe and to think clearly, to think of what I had to do. I tried to lift my hand, but I could not feel a hand; I could not feel an arm; I wasn't sure that I had one any more. My mind was confused.

I rolled my head to one side, screwing my eyes shut tightly, responding to the pain in my legs and back. The pain subsided slightly and I opened my eyes. The burning light did not disappear, but blazed into my pupils, stinging my eyes, making me entirely blinded except for a spot of darkness, a spot of red that was suspended in front of my vision, a dark red, matted and clotting in my eyelashes.

All the pain quickly numbed, and the adrenal in spreading through my body reached a peak, feeling like there was something alive, moving in a pit in my stomach.

The surroundings were so clear now, fire blazing all around, an ambulance screaming nearer, an undistinguishable clump of steel hunched in front of me. And around everything was the blood.

I shut my eyes tightly with the screaming of the ambulance filling my ears, and then there was darkness, complete darkness.

TREES

*Trees are the nicest thing I know
They have many branches that grow and grow,
And leaves that fall on the ground
Never making the slightest sound.*

*Trees come in various kinds
Some with fruit and some with vines,
Trees help us everyday
In lots and lots of different ways.*

S. Luketina — Year 5

A SPECIAL BIRTH

*Each morning, there is always one special birth
When the sun's rays gently fall upon the earth,
While the sun is able to give
So many more will always live,
When the sun drops down to die
So many more will also lie
Waiting for another day
When the sun shall pass their way.*

M. Harvey — Year 9

COLDS

*In bed I lay
The streets astray
I shiver and sneeze
As my wobbly knees
Move under the woollen blankets.
My temperature rose
And my freezing toes
Were suffering under the rugs.
And there I lay,
On the Cold winter day
With a burning head
I feel quite dead.
The hours pass on
They felt so long.
I couldn't get out of bed
For that, the doctor had said.
So there I lay on this cold day
As bored as bored
As one can be.*

N. Collins — Year 9

THE DOVE

*He hangs between his wings outspread
A symbol to all mankind
And turns his small sharp head
After a mate to find.*

*And now he sails on west
Across the morning countryside
Beating his small white breast
His companion at his side.*

THINGS THAT DON'T EXIST

It's a scientific world we're told
And everything can be explained.
If not — it doesn't exist
There are so many things in this world —
That don't exist
That one might question how or why?
But never receive an answer of notable value.

Are we like ants
Industriously moving back and forth
To and fro
Building a world to crumble and rebuild
Or in reality are we the advanced creature
That we claim to be?

Like the ant we could be watched
And discounted as an ignorant creature
With few thoughts or values of our own
Just rushing here to there and back again
In such a monotonous pattern of life
That enslaves us all and one that few escape.

For what we know
Our Earth could be but a speck of dust
In another world
Gigantic in size but in scale the same
Just an electron circling our atomic nucleus
Colloquially termed the "Sun".

Are we but ants
To creatures from space
Who could be watching us
And quite possibly are

For there are innumerable reports
Of "U.F.O." or "Flying Saucers"
Until recently discarded non-existent
But doubt has crept in
As a greater number of people
Are seeing "things that don't exist"

If people fear the truth
It is often unwise to enlighten them
For to escape from fear they must abscond to ignorance
For the ignorant neither see nor hear
"Things that don't exist".

In a way we all dwell in ignorance
For we all have fears
That we subdue by committing them to other peoples' fates
Many fear loneliness, bankruptcy or death
Others fear communists, terrorists or life after death
But we live with fear
That we ignore through 'logical reasonings'
Either it doesn't exist or it can't happen to me.

To many of us, especially the young Death doesn't exist until it comes only for those whom death has parted
A loved one or relative, those dearly departed
We all live on — for only life exists
And death is a fate that cannot be explained
So death is a fate that 'does not exist'.

T. Lorian — Year 10

THE LAST

*When the sun sets at night
Down behind the eastern range
Figures can be seen moving about on the plain.
These are the last of the tribal aborigines
But do not try to meet them
They are sick of white man's ways.*

A.E. Hall — Year 11

*With Banners blowing in the breeze,
With sword in hand and head on high,
With blood to spill and power to seize,
At man's hand, man doth die.*

*The dawn is here, the trumpets blow,
The grassy field is marred with blood,
The heroes to their graves doth go,
Crimson is the trampled mud.*

*The day has gone, the night sets in,
The time of war has ebbed and flowed,
Man must now purge all his sin,
Ere the Gods decrease his load.*

*Oh glorious was the battle hour,
Oh glorious the bards' account,
But fruits of war oft turn sour,
And slippery is the hill man mounts.*

*The blackened cloth, the widows tears,
The sorrow and the anguished grief,
That is the fire with which war sears,
And death is man's eternal fief.*

THE OAK

*The wind shook the giant oak,
The lightning flashed around,
The thunder cracked unceasingly
The rain began to pound.*

*The oak had stood for many a year
Survived the toughest storm.
It stood proud, erect, without a fear
Tall and strong of form.*

*The oak, it was no longer young
It had seen its finest days
For it the death bell had finally rung
Its life had slipped away.*

*The wind shook the giant oak
The lightning flashed around
The thunder cracked unceasingly
It rushed to meet the ground.*

RELIGION?

*I spoke to God the other day
and asked him why some people throw their food away
and others starve
I asked him why some people stab you in the back and asked him why I'm white but some are black
I asked him why we go to war and asked him who He really is, and why people go to church no more
unless they have to.
Is that religion God?*

A TESTING TIME

He looked out the small window, his hands sweaty. The day had grown hotter all morning as if building to a climax. His gaze dropped from the window and he looked around the small room. Eight new but familiar faces; faces he had known for years without knowing the voices or the minds. A roar of horror pulled his gaze towards the window. His chest pounded, his hands shook as he pulled on the light gloves. The time had come. Armed with his weapon he strode out the open door, deceptively confident. The roar continued but now he didn't hear it. The room had been dark and the dazzling light made it difficult for his eyes. He looked to the sky for hope, nothing but blazing blue there. He tried to concentrate but his mind would not allow it. He passed another of the familiar faces, and kept on walking. The length of the march began to worry him. Was he taking too long? He began to walk faster even though the heat of the day warned him not to. At last he was approaching the white blurs he had fixed his eyes on. He looked to the ground trying to appear relaxed. His stomach had tightened unbearably and his legs quivered slightly with every stride. Only the smell of sweat mixed with leather reassured him.

At last he was there. The roar had subsided to a buzz. He felt calmer now — in control. A white figure miles away signalled to him and he responded by moving his weapon. He was prepared.

The enemy approached in full fury, the glint of joy from the previous victim still in his eye. The enemy released his missile. He lifted his own and stuck the projectile in full flight, sending it scurrying away. The roar rose once more and this time he heard it.

A small smile broke out on his lips, his chest stopped beating and his legs began to move freely. He looked around and felt at ease. So this was what it felt like to play test cricket.

ELEPHANTS NEVER FORGET

Long, long ago when the world had just been made, there was an elephant named Gongo. In those days elephants were the king of the beasts and every living thing would bow to them as they passed. But the elephant had one enemy and that was the lion. The lion proclaimed that he should be the king because he was faster and smarter than the elephant. Nothing happened and the argument continued. There was never a vote because the animals were afraid of both lions and elephants.

Then one day the elephants decided to call a meeting because of the growing force of the lions. Gongo, who was then the leader of the elephants said, "We must find a way of keeping their numbers down or of enlarging ours, because they are starting to outnumber us." Some elephants said, "Let's kill them all and our worries will be at an end." But others said that would only show they were worried about the lions and all the other animals would turn against them. Finally, it was time for Gongo the leader to speak and as he rose there was a sudden silence.

"I have come to a decision which I believe will solve our problem. I believe that if we killed all the lions we would produce a greater problem with the other animals. Our only solution is to go to India and persuade some of the elephants over there to migrate here. Who would like to lead such an expedition and who will go with him? Nobody! Alright, then I'll go!" There was sudden murmuring and then about forty elephants shouted, "We will go with Gongo."

"Good," said Gongo, "I knew there were some brave fellows among you, we will leave at dawn."

The procession marched out at dawn. They marched for days and nights through country they had never seen — some beautiful and gay, and some barren and bleak. On they marched. Eventually, they came to the edge of a desert which had barely enough food to support them. There they found the other elephants who agreed to leave because the earth was beginning to rumble and make queer sounds elephants didn't like. About 300 elephants in all set off back across the desert and everything was fine for the first few nights. Then food and water began to run out and elephants were spreading out, searching for food and getting lost.

Gongo called them together and urged them to keep going but still some dropped back and many complained of hunger and thirst. Suddenly a lion appeared who offered to show them the way to food and water in return for the title of king of the jungle. Gongo wouldn't hear of it and ordered the elephants to march on. The elephants went on and on and more and more of them started to drop behind and the lion kept on coming back with the same deal. Finally, Gongo was forced to agree with the deal, but from that day on, elephants have never called their children Gongo. After all, elephants never forget.

DEATH IS PERMANENT

*What can you say death is about?
 To whom can you talk about it?
 Only God?
 What does one tell Him?
 Death is so permanent and the dead don't feel it.
 So you can't tell them you're sorry,
 Sorry? Sorry for who?
 Them or their families?
 It's so hard to try and tell a dead person
 How you really feel about them
 It's hard to ever tell God
 So what do you do?
 You cry and cry and cry
 But has the pain gone?
 Tell me God, why is something so permanent?*

T. Kailis — Year 9

THE CAMPER

*He was walking along the road, pace by pace,
In no hurry — and in no race.
With his camping equipment sagging on his back,
All stuffed untidily in his knapsack.*

*With his sunburnt skin from the scorching sun,
Back from his camping trip he will soon come.
When he thinks of his home, he quickens his pace,
But still in no hurry — and in no race.*

*He knows he has not far to go — so he stops for a rest,
And he is perspiring madly so he takes off his vest.
And soon the sun beats down on his back and face,
Which makes him weary and slows down his pace.*

*He drearily continues along, for miles and miles,
And at last, his destiny, his house's tiles,
And he walks along with a slightly quickened pace,
But still in no hurry — and not in a race.*

*With a sigh of relief, he opens his front door,
Takes off his knapsack and dumps it on the floor,
He kisses his wife and then staggers up to bed,
And five minutes later; sure enough, he's dead.*

M. Brown — Year 8

BIONOMITTY

Jump to second floor (bionic legs). Enter through skylight in shower of glass. Punch hefty man in stomach then chin (bionic arm). Throw smaller bloke twenty feet through air. Pick up crate — smash on heads of oncoming figures.

"Jeff, wake up!" Mother's voice rings down the hall. "Yes Mum!"

See bad guys getting away in car (bionic eye). Give chase. Catch up then run on to parked car. Push in front of oncoming car. Swerves and hits street light.

"I told you to get up." "Yeah, don't get excited."

In fight with four or five men. Suddenly cop one in the head. Wake up in darkroom. Remember mission — must get to control room before atomic missile is fired. Smash down steel door, falls on guard. Start running through complex. See control room door. Two guards outside. Throw down corridor. Rush in to see controller pressing firing button. Knock out. See self destruct button. Press and . . .

"For the last time!"

Leap from bed and struggle down hall to bionic orange juice.

HANG GLIDING

*The cold wind beats down on his face,
As he stands poised to make the flight.
All things are ready, he's set to race,
For time and speed he has to fight.*

*He seems to fall, but soon he'll rise,
Up to the sky and clouds above,
To meet the birds and all that glides,
And he'll be overwhelmed with love.*

*But rides like this don't last for long,
Time flies past like hay in a storm,
The kite swoops down, the wind is strong,
To meet the day, the coming morn.*

A. Nathan — Year 8

THE SHIP

He loved her, gracefully streamlined, photographed in a beautiful position, boldly resisting the waves and the icy cold of the Arctic.

He killed her you know, he had to. She was not worthwhile, so he sent her to face death. As she usually did, she obeyed him, trusted him while he despised every part of her, every nut and bolt. He made sure she rarely saw port. He made sure she suffered her long months at sea. She withstood his punishment as a sign of his love for her. He seemed to enjoy it, every minute of it. At last, she was off his back.

Like a frozen memory, she sits on the wall, only more beautiful than ever in his eyes.

N. Davis — Year 9

DUSTBIN, O.B.E.

*Stand there abused, scorned.
There is laughter at your appearance
Let's face it, you're down right ugly.
You degrade their grassy scenery,
And disgrace their prize blooms.
They try to ignore you, deplore you,
kick and curse you.*

*Your duty is mocked,
Yet you stand there, quietly bearing the strain
And smelling profoundly of your contents.
You are sneered at by society
But proudly hold your head up high,
While someone throws another bean tin
Down your grateful gullet.*

*Yet, with pride and hope in your heart,
And love of your country,
Along with other things,
In your galvanised body,
Stands unashamed and haughty,

P. Nendick — Year 12

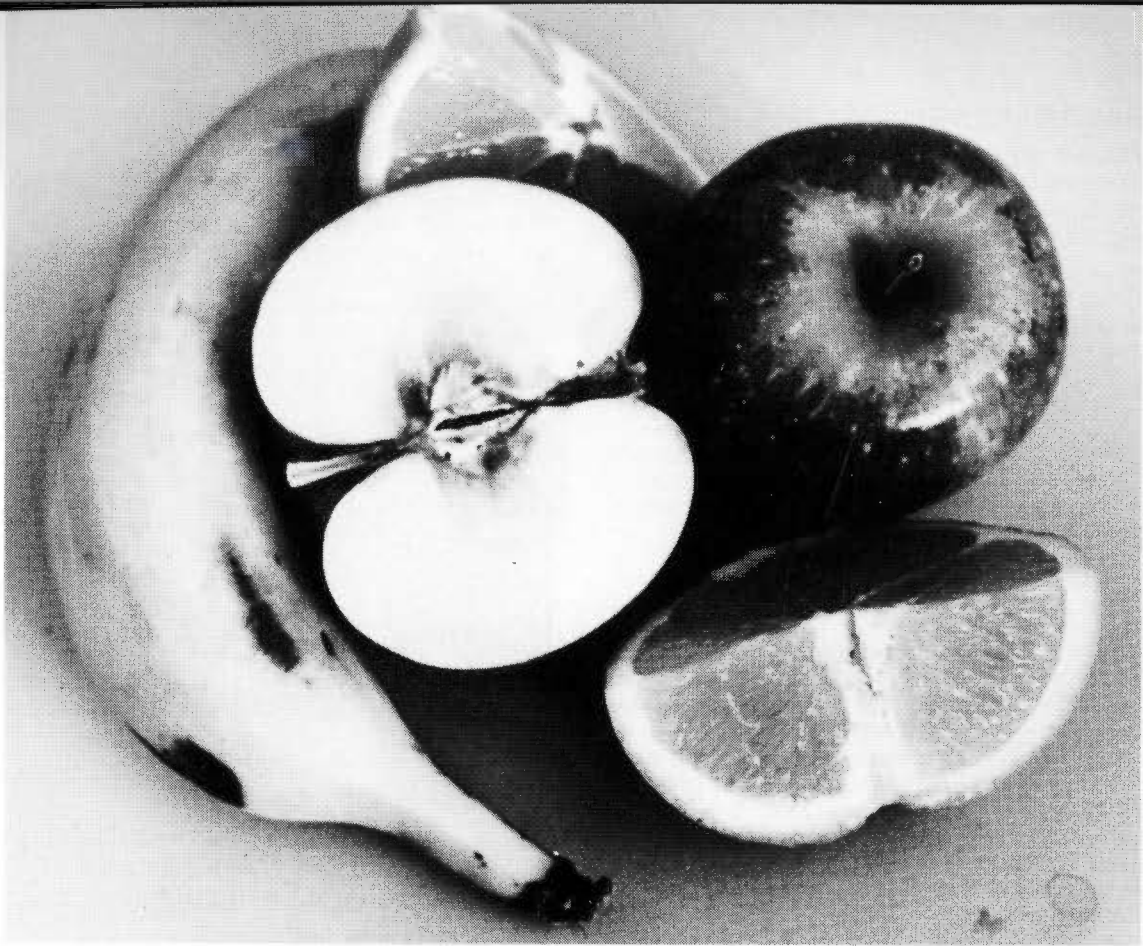

WINTER SOLITUDE

A warm log fire crackled and hissed as it burned in the hearth. All of the windows had been shut tightly and the old, weather-beaten door had been bolted. An old woman, sitting in a rocking chair, was knitting, her wrinkled fingers working skilfully. She paused momentarily, and stroked a skinny cat sitting on a nearby window sill, as the storm continued. Through the window panes, snow could be seen, a vast white blanket covering the country-side. The autumn leaves had fallen and the bare trees shivered in this misty solitude.

A man, bent and withered with age, hobbled into the room. The floor boards creaked as he made his way to a worn armchair opposite the woman. There they would wait until the snow had stopped. But this would not happen for some time.

Outside the snow kept falling, stealthily settling on withered branches and then plummeting to the ground. Squirrels and other small creatures scuttled about frantically, trying to escape the sting of the wind and snow against their fur. They scampered up trees and sheltered amongst the branch of trees planted long ago.

BURIED

As I hit the floor of the valley a cold wet world flung itself on me in an icy smother. I was suddenly still. It was then I realised I was buried. I brought up my right hand to clear a space to breathe, yet no air came. I panicked and began to thrust my hand upward searching for the surface of the snow. As last my hand broke through — grey sunlight and air rushed in. I gulped selfishly on the air and choked on the small bits of snow still in my mouth.

I. Chiswell — Year 11

SPACE

Once I said to my friend let's make a spaceship and go to the Moon. When we come back we can tell everyone about what happened up there. So we made a spaceship on Monday. It was launched and half way up when it happened. We had trouble in the engine and a fire started. We got out the fireguns and then got to the moon alright as the fire was only a little one. We had to repair the engine. On the Moon, we saw some funny things like two animals stuck together, and we took lots of pictures of these things.

When we got back we slept for two days.

M. Marinko — Year 3

DYING

*In the blackness,
staring upward at the turbulent violence,
the soldier shifts consciousness.*

*Above his shallow grave,
he sees black wraiths of smoke,
as they drift, dreamlike, above his head.*

*He is in a world apart;
dismembered from the destruction above,
Inches and miles away.*

*About him lie weapons of destruction,
embedded in inches of oozing mud.
And yet none concerns him,
the dying have no concern.*

*This is his moment of immortality,
No bombs or guns harm him.
A fleeting moment perhaps,
but with the power of ages.
The soldier need fear nothing and no-one.
he has lost reason to fear.*

The dying have no reason to fear.

THE DAY I DIED

I was a priest. Perhaps not a good one, but a priest nevertheless. I sang vespers and went to chapel. In fact, I did everything a good priest should do. On the outside at least, but inside, my mind was in a turmoil. The old cogs creaked as I continuously wondered; what if we are wrong? The question consumed me day and night, that is, until 'the day'.

It started off ordinarily enough, usual vespers, chapel and all the other religious humdrum that goes with Sundays in a monastery. But it wasn't long before the radio blurted forth the fateful and fatal news, and the sound of the first air raid sirens for thirty years shattered the air.

Conventional bombs by the dozen poured down out of hundreds of planes, but, after an hour, the sky cleared and then ten huge bombers came into view. Ten gloriously deceptive silken parachutes blossomed out of the bomb hatches.

Everyone stopped clicking their rosaries and silence was total . . . apart from one whispered word that was passed down the line of monks; "Atomics!"

All I can remember of my earthly life after that is a red explosion. Then everything faded into the utter darkness of death.

After a while the darkness became opaque. Then, with a blinding flash, I was in the after-life.

I was on a fiery plain, bathed in a blood-red light. Unearthly scene; Eternal fire. I felt myself rising on a wave. A wave of blood! I was carried along for about an hour, when the wave "evaporated", vanished, leaving me empty, drained of life completely.

I was exploring my new surroundings, a deep black cavern, when a voice rang in my ears.

"Who entereth my domain?"

"I sense he has defied my word!"

All at once the cave was full of smoke. In the midst of the smoke stood horned men.

"To the other place, the other place, the other place . . ."

I was transported into a lush valley, a beautiful valley. There I found total pleasure, for everything I wanted was supplied.

But there I also found Total Hell; Boredom.

S. Hawkes — Year 8

PREFECTS

*I know that you did it, I know it was you
So there's no point in saying but what did I do?
You are the culprit and so you will be caned
With lies and deceit this house you have stained
But Prefect, Oh Prefect, But what have I done?
Nothing you fool, but isn't this fun.*

C. Hearne — Year 11

The sun's first tinge of light illuminates the dark forbidding sky on the eastern horizon. A short but powerfully built form slips down the cliff face, as quiet and agile as a cat stalking its prey. The dark form slips into the shadows only to re-appear just as the sun tears a blazing hole in the eastern sky. The dark form is a man making his way to a ledge, where, in well practised movements, he mounts his glider. From the top of the cliff he looks like a gnome, as he wheels around to face the brilliant morning sun slowly rising above the horizon. From the ledge, only a few metres above the glassy morning ocean, he steps off, and is caught by a warm updraft that carries him to the top.

As I stand there alone on the cliff, watching, an old song flows through me:

*"I have my land, books and
my poetry to protect me;
I am shielded in my armour,
Hiding in my room,
Safe within my womb
I touch no-one and no-one touches me
I am a rock
I am an island."*

The more I thought about it, the more it struck me how I was like an island. I was totally isolated, living in my own world. Yet as I watched this "gnome", I felt this loneliness seeping from me. Watching his crazy, smooth manoeuvres defying the laws of gravity made me feel good all over, and his freedom seemed to release me as well.

My thoughts were interrupted by a girl who had walked up to my side and asked in amazement:

"Who's that?"

I turned to study her, and wondered if she wanted the truth.

"A fugitive garden gnome that lives in a fissure in the cliff face," I replied without humour, for that is what he is to me.

S. Mumme — Year 11

A DEAD MAN

*The condemned looked around,
Four damp and grimey walls rearing high above him, glaring down.
Somehow he moved, subconscious in total command,
His conscious despaired, an incredible despair.
With sluggish limbs he made ready.
A swish.
There was no pain above his sadness
As he left an age old friend,
And fell away.*

Outside the wind blows
Outside.
Inside, nothing
Just bored people, sad people,
People trapped inside, watching

Only two terms to go.*

MORNING OF THE EARTH

*Darkness, fading into light,
The dawn of day begun.
Blackness making way for white,
Heralding the sun.

Crisp the air hangs all around,
The dew upon the grass,
The stars and moon no longer found,
As from the sky they pass.

Colour returns to the earth
Wakened to the day.
Life has come through the rebirth
The morning of the earth is here at last
The sun in the sky tells night has passed.*

I slimmed him up to 53 pounds,
And now he's so small he can hardly be found.*

THE BUILDING SITE

Its great beams cast a shadow over the ground.
It is a new library. The metal beams are grey in colour and loom high over the piles of fawny bricks which are in a circular shape around the pillars. It has a low frame of dark brown wood around it which would be very easy to trip over. With golden yellow sand completely around it, it looks like a house which has been bombed during a war.

DESERT

*The parched land
cracked with never ending heat.
Life only at night
lasting only a beat.*

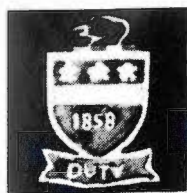

*The finger-like rays
lift the cold briskness away,
But still the heat pours on
The desert will stay.*

*Blistering heat beating down
then a flash of light
Rain comes pelting down
the desert springs to life.*

*The plants flowered
blue, green and red,
And life appeared
as if from the dead.*

*And then the sun
Keeping up its toll
Sweltering heat as before desert life is no more.*

The first known Prefect was Frank Parker who was elected by F.C. Faulkner Esq. M.A. (Cantab.) as Head of the School in 1893. (Parker is now Crown Prosecutor). Ever since 1893 we have had seven in our number, three elected by the Head Master and four by the boys. In January 1912 a change was made. There are still seven Prefects but four are now elected by the Head Master.

Swimming

This year's Hale School swimming team went into the Inters Carnival with the knowledge that they were about to face their toughest competition for the past eleven years. It was widely held because of last year's close results that Scotch would wrest the laurels from Hale. Everybody, however, had failed to appreciate that the vastly improved Wesley team would also be a force to contend with and they managed to take very valuable points from the Scotch team, leaving Hale supreme.

Our Captain, Danny Rechichi, was narrowly beaten (for the first time in his long Inters career) in the blue ribbon 100 metres freestyle event. Richard Whiting, however, clearly won the second division and Hale won both divisions of the U/13 and U/15 freestyle events finishing the freestyle section with a narrow lead of seven points over Scotch.

Breaststroke has traditionally been Hale's weakest stroke and although we didn't have any outstanding swimmers we managed to improve our place results and maintain our seven points lead. It had been expected that at this stage we would have been behind Scotch so the improvement of Hale breastrokers was a contributing factor in our eventual success.

The breaststroke events saw Hale gain four firsts, two seconds and four thirds and thus increase our lead to twenty six points. With another four firsts, four seconds and four thirds in the butterfly events, reasonable success in the relays would ensure us victory.

The open 200 metres saw our U/16 champion, David Agnew swim his best race ever to finish first in the second division, whilst Danny Rechichi was narrowly beaten in the first division. We were able to go into the relays with an almost unbeatable lead of 45 points over Wesley.

Hale was content to swim into third place in both medley relays and concentrated all our strength in the freestyle relays. In doing so we became the first School ever to win the five freestyle relays. Hale won its 11th successive Inters by a margin of 84 points from Scotch, closely followed by the much improved Wesley team.

Congratulations to all swimmers and thanks to Mr. Hoad and all the coaches for another successful swimming year.

HONOURS

D. RECHICHI - SWIMMING

1976 UNDER 16

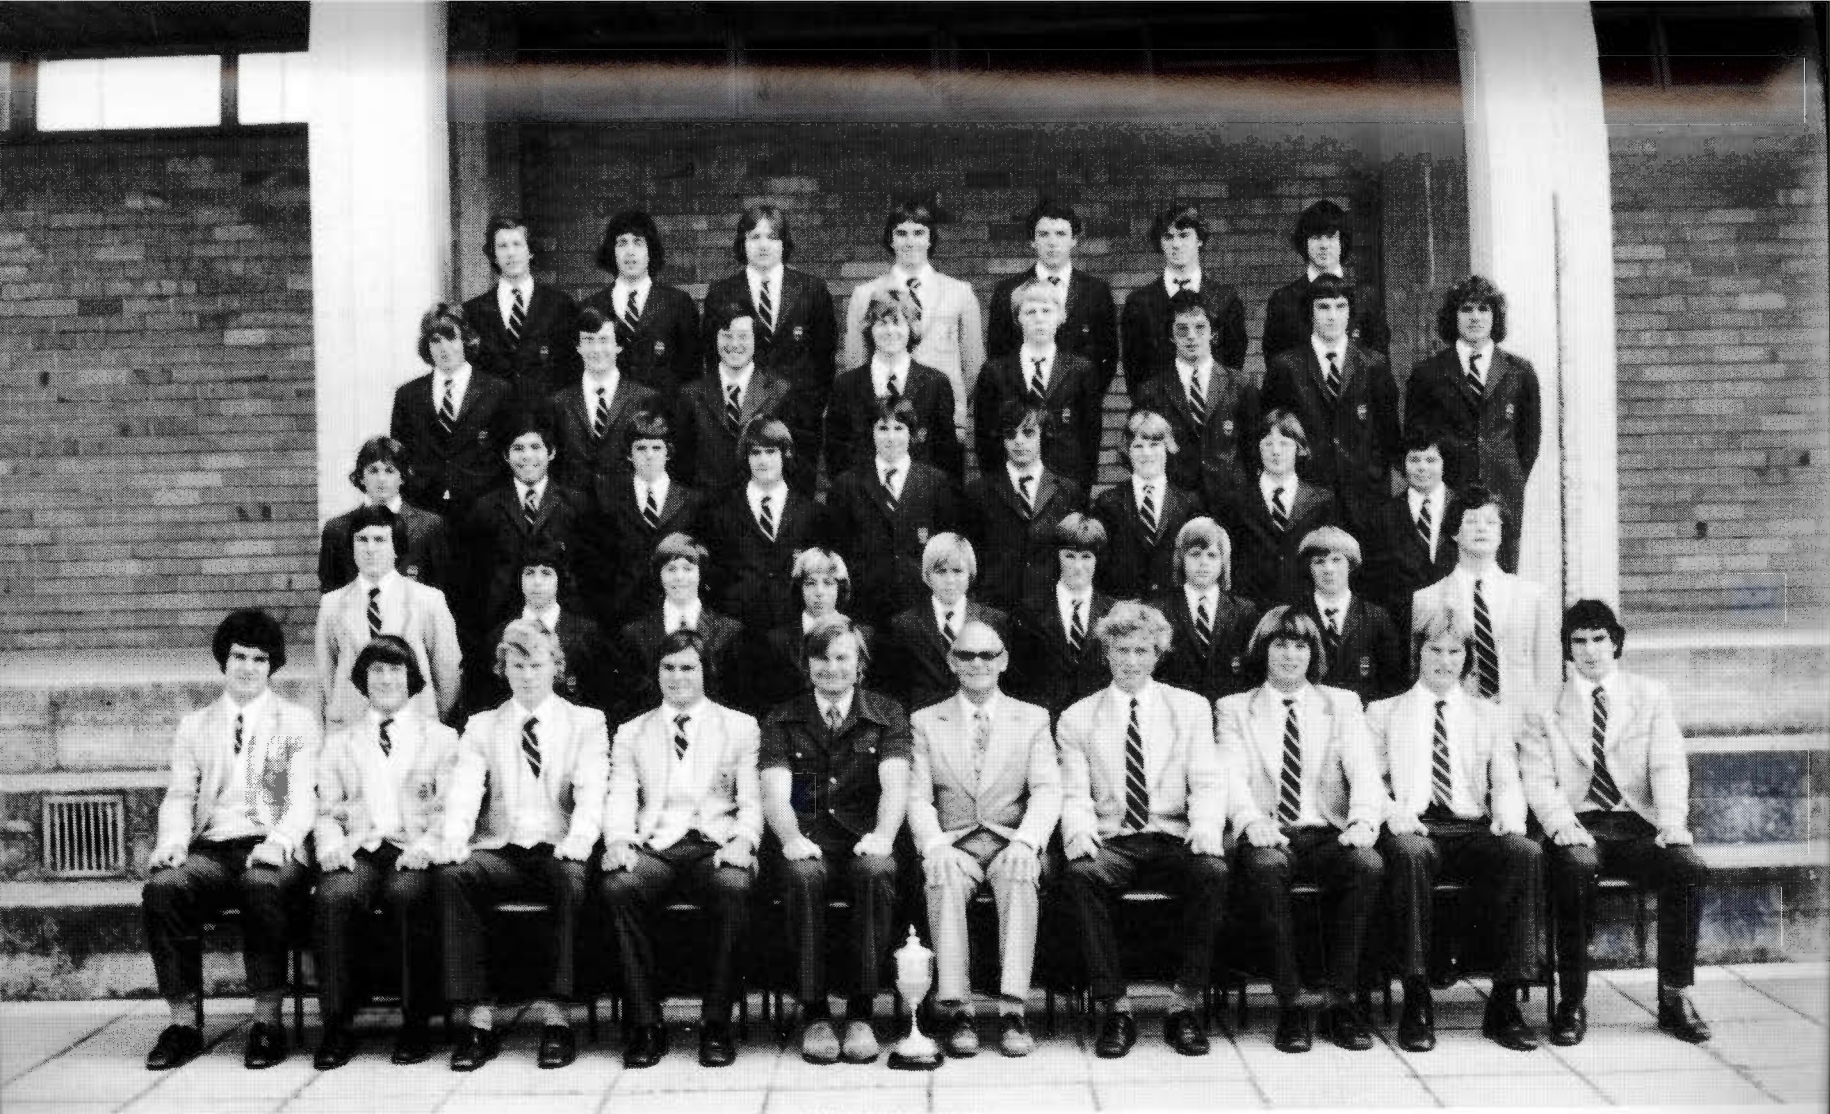

In this year, Rechichi recorded four 1st Division wins (48 points), one 1st Division second (9 points), and was a member of the winning relay (20 points) making a total of 77 points, a record number.

1977 OPEN

In this year, he recorded one 1st Division win (12 points), four 1st Division seconds (36 points), and was a member of the winning relay (20 points) contributing a total of 68 points.

Because of his versatility in four strokes, he has been the most prolific points scorer ever for Hale School, and certainly since 1967 has scored more points for a school over five years than any other swimmer from any other school. The worst place he ever achieved was a second in a first division event.

During his stay at Hale School, he set two relay records and six interschool records (still standing).

Rowing

Rowing commenced in the last week of Christmas holidays when about a dozen boys enjoyed a rowing camp held at the Beacham Property on the Murray River. The day began with a gruelling twelve mile row, which was attacked with great vigour. The afternoons were spent more restfully, either at the races or crabbing in the estuary. Thanks must go to the Beachams for their unlimited hospitality and to Mr. Roy Adams and Mr. Tony Paterson.

Training for the rest of the boys began early in first term and there was keen competition to make a crew. There were some minor upsets due to swimming and injuries in the early stages of training, but these were soon settled. The season itself was short, and there was little rest between regattas.

The first task of racing was at the Wesley Regatta, held early in the season. The events were regarded as rating races only as the crews were still unsettled. The Hale regatta was held in perfect conditions and the rowing was of a very high standard. It was hoped that Hale's success in the first eights was an indicator for the following week's big race. The mothers who provided the morning tea and the boys who set up the course must be thanked for their efforts.

Conditions for rowing on the day of the 'Head of the River' were ideal. All crews rowed to the best of their ability and there were many close finishes. The 'Head of the River' was tremendously exciting with Hale leading for the first 1500 metres only to be overhauled by the powerful Aquinas crew within the last hundred metres. Both the crew and the coach, Roger Harrison, were disappointed. Throughout the season Roger spent hours with the crew, encouraging and advising. We thank him for his tremendous efforts. The regatta day concluded with a barbecue and river cruise which were enjoyed immensely.

I would like to thank all the coaches who worked so hard to develop Hale School rowing, and those who assisted in the maintenance of the boats. Mr. Truscott for his tireless efforts and unlimited patience, deserves the highest praise and our sincere thanks.

Cricket

The HALE 1st XI returned from Adelaide winning four of the five games played. There was tremendous team spirit and we were determined to retain the Darlot Cup.

The side received a severe setback in the first game against Wesley. After dismissing Wesley for the modest total of 130, Hale could do no better and the match was tied. In the second game against the strong Christ Church side, Hale's bowlers could not penetrate the middle order and Christ Church reached the formidable total of 230. Hale's batting again proved to be brittle and we were dismissed for 161. It now looked as if the Darlot Cup was gone for 1977.

However, the side refused to give in, and their fightback deserves the highest praise. In the next game against Trinity, we made 281 and victory seemed inevitable. Trinity fought hard however, and it was only a fine diving slips catch by Home off the second last ball of the day, that finally brought us success. With the memory of last year's struggle against Guildford firmly entrenched in our minds, we were determined not to let this happen again. The side bowled, fielded, and battled superbly to easily defeat Guildford outright. Mention must be made of the fine century by Simon York. Opening the batting, his was the second last wicket to fall.

In the next game against Aquinas our batting again showed obvious weaknesses and we were dismissed for 127. The side rallied to the cause and we bowled and fielded with great tenacity to dismiss Aquinas for 75. Our strong fightback almost brought outright victory but the Aquinians with their characteristic fight held out. Our next match was against our old rivals Scotch. Although it seemed only Scotch or Christ Church could win the Cup we knew we were within striking distance. Should the improving Wesley side beat Christ Church, our only chance was to beat Scotch. Hale batted first and were in trouble early. At 6/98 it seemed our final score would be around 120, but showing our real fighting spirit the tail wagged and put on a further 90 invaluable runs. We knew that constant pressure would be essential against the strong Scotch batting line up, but at 5/138 it looked like they would cruise to an easy victory. Hale never gave up. At the fall of the next wicket I called all the players in and it was clear everyone thought we could still win the game. The news from excited spectators that Wesley had beaten Christ Church made us even more determined, and at 9/171 with one wicket to fall or eleven runs to score, the game was evenly balanced. After three unsuccessful appeals, the Scotch batsman was finally bowled and great excitement followed as we thought we had won the Cup. This was not to be. Christ Church had snatched an outright victory and denied us the Darlot Cup for the second year in succession by the narrowest of margins.

Thanks must go to all the players and to Mr. Gidney for his tireless efforts. Even though we didn't win the Cup the boys must be praised for their determination and tenacity. Thanks must also go to the mothers for their wonderful afternoon teas, and Mr. McKenna and the ground staff for their 'Test' like wickets.

In conclusion, I congratulate Christ Church on their win, a win which they thoroughly deserved being the only side to defeat us.

SQUASH 1st IV

J. Raiter, H.L. Chrystal, Mr. W.E. Edgar, D.N. Breckler, R.C. Turrell

Squash

A great deal of enthusiasm was created in Squash this year with four out of the five teams that entered in the 'Juicy Fruit Pennant Competition' reaching the final four.

The U/13 team improved greatly through the year and finished in third position. Alistair Ewell, Neil Cribb, Chris Baker, Justin Cooke and Graham McGhee are all to be congratulated for putting up such a fine effort.

Two other teams that made the four were, the U/15 Cygnets, consisting of Michael Garland, Geoff Marinko, Simon Lill and Gavin Earnshaw, and the U/15 Blues which was represented by Kim Paddick, Peter Galvin, Paul Williams, David Garland, Philip Richards and Andrew Allford. Unfortunately, a place in the grand final eluded both teams, but an enjoyable season was well rewarded by these teams obtaining third position.

With many of the U/17 players being away at Wittenoom at different intervals, a place in the final four was not achieved. However, David Luketina, Mark Rigo, John Del Basso and Michael Borlase are looking forward to bettering that performance with a full season next year.

The first IV started off the season extremely well by winning their first seven games convincingly. Unfortunately, the eighth team, Rossmoyne, proved too strong. Hayden Chrystal, Danny Breckler, Rob Turrell and Jeremy Raiter had a great time on final day marred only by their loss to Rossmoyne. Second place to this team, however, was not disappointing and it topped off a very successful year right through the ranks.

Thanks must go to Mr. Edgar for organising the teams and to all those involved. It is hoped that squash will continue to get the support of the school.

TENNIS — FIRST VIII — WINNERS OF CORR CUP

Back Row: Mr. W.E. Edgar, J.A.T. Taylor, J.M. Storey, A.C. Dohle, Mr. M. Bonner.
Front Row: C.O.R. Yong, C.M. Johnstone, J. Raiter, D.T. Clapin, S.L.A. Torode.

Tennis

The 1977 season for Hale tennis was an extremely successful and rewarding one for all the teams involved. Mr. Bonner was again our very enthusiastic coach and he was ably assisted by Mr. Edgar.

The Squad looked set for a great season showing application and determination at all training sessions at which "Friendly Oval" was our constant companion.

The First VIII consisting of Chris Johnstone, Scott Nicholas, John Storey, Jeremy Raiter, Justin Taylor, Raymond Yong, Austin Dohle, David Clapin, Danny Breckler, Stuart Torode and Douglas Smith went through the season undefeated and retained the Corr Cup. The Second VIII, Year 9 and Year 8 teams also completed the season undefeated with the Year 10 team losing only one match. This was indeed a remarkable achievement.

Teams were entered in the four state-wide competitions namely the Slazenger Cup, Mursell Shield, Herbert Edwards Cup and the Primary School Academy Plate. Hale was successful in the Slazenger Cup and Herbert Edwards Cup Division 2.

By thus achieving the double of the Corr and Slazenger Cups, Hale must be regarded as the strongest tennis school in Western Australia.

Honours were awarded to Chris Johnstone, (a leading State player) who has contributed enormously to Hale's tennis supremacy in the last two years. Tribute must also be paid to Scott Nicholas, for his outstanding contribution to Hale tennis.

Our social match against the State Veteran's team was most enjoyable, with youth and exuberance this year losing only narrowly to age and experience.

All players convey their thanks to Mr. Bonner, who is undoubtedly responsible for Hale's innumerable successes over the years, and to Mr. Edgar who devoted so much time and effort as Master-in-charge of tennis.

HONOURS C. JOHNSTONE — TENNIS

In the two years he has played tennis for Hale he has not lost a set of singles in either the Corr or Slazenger Cup Competitions competing against players such as Grant, Begley and Di Francesco, all members of the State squad.

In 1975/76 he was captain of the State U/16 team and shared the U/16 Australian Title (doubles) with Keith Begley. He reached the 1/4s of the Australian Singles Titles in that season.

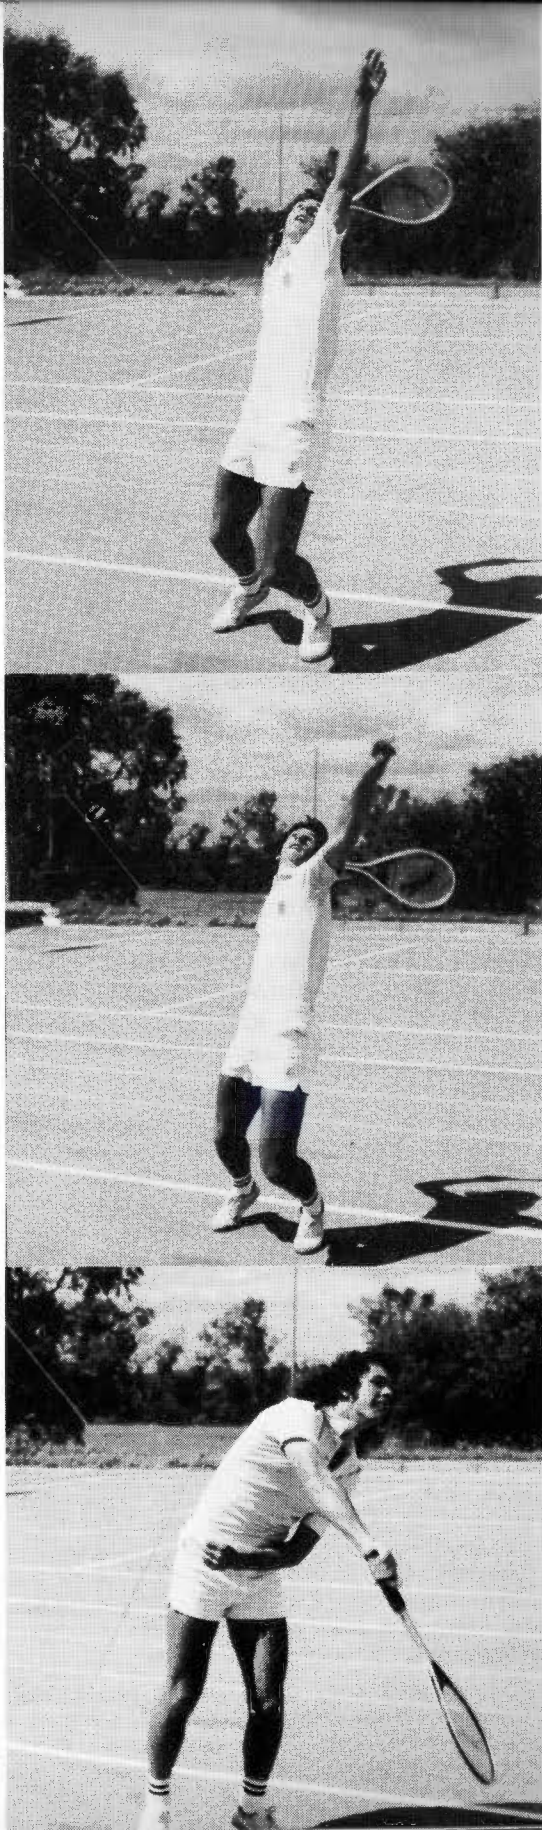

In 1976/77 trip to the Eastern States, he represented W.A. as the No. 2 player in the U/19 Linton Cup Competition and then won the Australian U/19 Doubles Title with Laurence Hall.

He has won the State U/19 Singles Title for the last two years in addition to numerous other tournaments.

Johnstone, the current No. 1 ranked junior in Western Australia, represents the Fremantle Club Senior Pennant side (No. 2 behind Rob Casey, the State's No. 1 Senior) which won the senior pennant this year. He is the captain, and No. 1 of the Fremantle U/19 team which won the Division One Pennant this season.

Additionally he reached the semi-finals of the Senior State Closed Titles this year, losing to Gary Penberthy, and on that performance would be ranked as the No. 3 or 4 player in State senior ranks.

During his two years at Hale his conduct in tennis, football and athletics has been exemplary. He has been a great performer and ambassador for the school.

Hockey

Hale Hockey had its most successful season since 1970 and with the second year 'A' team not losing a match the prospects for the future look bright.

The Hale 1st XI with the help of coach Mr. Jordan and the new 'All blue' uniform developed into a highly competitive hockey team. The tremendous determination and will power typified by all 1st XI players, resulted in the great success the team had. We finished third behind the talented Wesley and strong Christ Church team.

Although the team had many very skilful players, the backbone of the team were those less gifted players who through dedication and application increased the standard of their hockey out of sight during the course of the season.

The season began with the 1st XI led by Mr. Gray, touring the country, playing matches against various country towns. This did much to instil team spirit into the side and stood us in good stead for the first round P.S.A. hockey. During this round we won 5 games and unluckily lost to Wesley in the last 10 seconds of play. We fell away in the second round losing to Wesley again, Trinity and drawing against Christ Church to finish third.

During the season many social matches were played. Hale drew with a competitive Hotspurs XI 3 all, defeated an Old Hale 'IC' team 3-2 and in a highly exciting game against the Masters, won 3-2.

Thanks must go to Mr. Jordan for his very professional approach to coaching, and to Mr. Gray, Mr. Greenwell and Mr. Biddle for their tireless support throughout the season.

Rugby

Hale and Scotch College finished the 1977 Rugby season level in points and so, there being no final, shared the Brother Redmond Cup.

The season was notable for the close competition in the top division, for the inauguration of a good P.S.A. under 16 competition and for the number of Rugby players at Hale reaching the significant figure of 144. (Rugby at Hale is not just coarse — it is gross).

The most successful side was the year eight team which lost only one game, conceded only two tries and scored 190 points while conceding 11.

The under 16's were also very strong and they, with the good players in year nine and in the Second XV, give us hope for the future — a hope clouded only by the fact that Rugby is also booming in Guildford, Scotch and Wesley.

The first XV began the season with some unimpressive defeats in trial games. We had an exceptionally big pack of forwards and once they were fit and sufficiently motivated, our team became hard to beat. Unfortunately our backs never fully realized their potential and a few lapses in defence allowed Scotch to beat us.

Three of the team — Peter Liddle, Rob Mitchell and Wade Anderson, were selected in the State Schoolboys XV and Mark Kent was in the State Under 16 side.

A few highlights of the season should be recorded:—

Charles Gollow performing the very rare feat of scoring every possible way in U/16 game against

Wesley with a field goal and penalty goal, a try and a conversion.

Faulkner House winning a memorable seven-a-side Carnival by beating Wilson in the final before a big enthusiastic crowd of boarders.

Big Greg Mengler making goal kicking look easy.

Peter Liddle, as a break away, dominating the game.

Rob Mitchell taking on a whole pack of forwards by himself.

Stephen Johnson preventing what appeared to be certain tries with fine low tackles.

Centre Mark Bell making driving runs on the few occasions the backline really clicked.

Wade Anderson setting sail for the try-line, a first grade winger.

Two Old Haleians, Tim Davis and David Vaux, the only P.S.A. men selected, outstanding in the Senior State side's interstate clashes.

Six Old Haleians in Associates' Premiership — winning Colts XV.

Hale football 1977 was contrast. The team looked sound on paper, it produced a magnificent Interstate and yet could manage only third in the Cup. Christ Church was the best team. Though they shared the Cup with Aquinas (each losing the once, to each other), their football against all schools was convincing and their tackling a high-light.

The airline strike helped produce probably Hale's finest Interstate win. The spirit of the group reached an all time high on the train trip to Adelaide and gave the team incredible desire and an eventual 14.5 to 11.15 victory over the talented and sizeable Geelong. Hale's ball getting ability, clever handball and short passing in this game, and in the annihilation of Scotch, was most impressive. Certainly the Carnival, tremendous, as usual, was a tribute to the Scotch organisers, the billets, the birds and the comradeship of everyone. May we be good enough to host yet another grand week in 1978 — the fourteenth Interstate.

Tennis extraordinaire, Chris Johnstone was the season's best player. His control of the ball at centre was remarkable and his many fine games influenced our destiny significantly. Ruck rover half forward David Tuckey's football was also quality and his good games coincided with our victories. The ruck twins Sandy Home and Brett Farmer played strongly throughout, kicked many goals and are assured of bright futures.

Others did well at times — John Storey a solid defender, Lowey, creative on a wing, Marsh and O'Meehan often productive, Foulkes and Bungey young and skilful. There were others too, but somehow we lacked the depth and the consistency to win all games. Even so, only Christ Church conquered us. The first Scotch game was disappointing and the Aquinas one extraordinarily unlucky, but we had system and team-work in other games. Against Christ Church we needed our Geelong approach, we needed the ball, the team-work, the runners, the feeling!

My thanks again go to many — to Messrs. Chadwick, Smith and Bairstow for coaching help, to doyen of timekeepers, Fred Spencer, to tolerant runner Basil Zempilas, to Robert Turrell an excellent goal umpire, and to our youthful boundary umpires. In my time we have never had a finer lot of parents — their support, encouragement, involvement and humour made it a happy team. The Gepps, Homes, Tuckeys, McLartys, Farmers, Johnstones, Storeys, Marshs, O'Meehans, Foulkes and all the others made it a year to remember. The work of Mr. Truscott, unobtrusive as usual, was supreme — he "managed" everything. My thanks, too, go to all players, and there were many, for their efforts in creating a meaningful unit. Special praise to Tim, Sandy, Tuck, Johnno and Brett for their football, their ideas and their help. Tim Gepp (unluckily hampered by injury) led the team well and cared for all aspects of our football, indeed of all aspects of Hale.

This report ends on a sad note. We record the deaths of two great friends of Hale football. The late Ed Davies, as a coach and later manager of Geelong College, made a vast contribution to the ideals of Interstate. His vital association with the boys and staffs of Geelong, Scotch and Hale lasted ten years and we will greatly miss his influence and friendship. Jim O'Connell's death in September shocked us all. Jim was our champion masseur for the past five years. Goodness knows how many he treated — his knowledge of injuries was amazing and his ready wit and advice so much appreciated. Jim loved his association with Hale and we have lost a great helper and a real friend. Dedication of the years ahead if Hale football is to remain near the top.

RESULTS

FIRST XVIII RESULTS

HALE V CHRIST CHURCH

Hale made a disappointing start to the Alcock Cup season. Christ Church played skilfully in the first quarter to score nine goals.

Hale fought on tenaciously, but lacked the pace and system of some talented opponents.

FOOTBALL SECOND XVIII

Back Row: J.S. Williamson, T.R.J. Urqhart, C.A. Russell, G.M. Chiswell, P.J. Short.

Third Row: A.C. Dohle, S.L.A. Torode, C.R. Smith, C.S. Cherry, P.A. O'Meehan, A.H.S. Foulkes, T.I. Oldham.

Second Row: C.J.B. Seed, C.J.C. Temby, B.M. Audas, S.R. York, P.N. James, E.J. Hill, A.W. Berryman.

Front Row: J.R.B. Cowan, L.O. Featherby, R.G. Durston, Mr. L.G. Smith, I. Beacham, A.W. Farmer, D.W. Dent.

SCORE: HALE 12.3 was defeated by Christ Church 16.9.

GOALS: Farmer 3, Tuckey 2, Johnstone 2, Home 2, O'Meehan 2, Lowe 1.

BEST: Gepp, Storey, Farmer, Lowe, Hanlon.

HALE V TRINITY

Hale and Trinity fought out an exciting game. For three quarters the Hale effort was again uneven and we relied too much on the mobility of Tuckey and Farmer. In the final term the whole team played well to overcome a two goal deficit and go onto a fighting win.

SCORE: HALE 13.7 defeated Trinity 11.6.

GOALS: O'Meehan 4, Tuckey 3, Johnstone 2, Home 1, Fullarton 1, Foulkes 1, Mumme 1.

BEST: Johnstone, Tuckey, Farmer, O'Meehan, McNeil, Marsh.

HALE V WESLEY

In a low standard first half, a tenacious Wesley contained Hale. Once our runners opened up the game with handball, the goals came and Wesley were outclassed. Hale's system was high class, reminiscent of the Geelong victory.

SCORE: HALE 19.14 defeated Wesley 5.5.

GOALS: Storey 3, Galbraith 3, Farmer 3, McNeil 2, Home 2, Gepp 2, Tuckey 1, Hill 1, Hanlon 1, Johnstone 1.

BEST: Johnstone, Gepp, O'Meehan, Thew, Tuckey, Farmer, Wheeler, Lill.

HALE V SCOTCH

In windy conditions, Hale again started slowly and played poorly. Though Scotch had more pace and a greater zest for the game, they had to work hard to prevent a Hale victory in the final quarter.

SCORE: HALE 5.7 was defeated by Scotch 8.3.

GOALS: Hanlon 2, Home 1, Marsh 1, Galbraith 1.

BEST: Johnstone, Foulkes, Bungey, Tuckey, Gepp.

HALE V AQUINAS

This game was typical of many stirring encounters in recent years. Hale's concentration, teamwork and emotion enabled them to lead until the closing minutes. The Aquinas high marking power was significant in the final quarter and enabled them to come from five goals behind and win by six points. As events turned out Hale was extremely unlucky to lose.

SCORE: HALE 11.14 was defeated by Aquinas 13.8.

GOALS: Home 5, Farmer 2, Tuckey 2, Johnstone 1, Foulkes 1.

BEST: Home, Foulkes, Shenn, Johnstone, Galbraith, McNeil.

HALE V G.G.S.

The Hale team returned to winning form with a thirty three goal win over a lack lustre Guildford. Hale controlled the ball throughout, used handball to telling effect and played excellent team football. This was the highest score of the season by any team and the highest Hale has kicked for many years.

SCORE: HALE 35.12 defeated G.G.S. 4.2.

GOALS: Home 12, Farmer 11, Tuckey 4, Marsh 3, O'Meehan 2, McNeil 1, Lowe 1, Galbraith 1.

BEST: Home, Farmer, Tuckey, Johnstone, Gepp, Storey, Bungey.

HALE V CHRIST CHURCH

Greater desire, superior speed and fierce tackling enabled Christ Church to win easily and establish themselves as the best team of '77. Hale's overall skill was below that of Christ Church and our failure to check their forwards cost us dearly. Johnstone again, and Thew, Home and youthful Foulkes showed admirable fighting qualities.

SCORE: HALE 6.6 was defeated by Christ Church 10.13.

GOALS: Home 4, Lill 2.

BEST: Johnstone, Thew, Foulkes, Home.

HALE V TRINITY

Trinity had purpose, speed and an ability to win the ball in the first half. Their quick moving forwards enabled them to lead by four goals just before half time.

Hale showed spirit and teamwork in coming from behind and winning convincingly.

SCORE: HALE 14.12 defeated Trinity 11.9.

GOALS: Johnstone 3, Vidovich 3, Halnan 2, Gepp 1, Foulkes 1, Hanlon 1, Marsh 1, Home 1, Farmer 1.

BEST: Johnstone, Tuckey, Lowe, Farmer, Bungey, Lill, Home.

HALE V WESLEY

Wesley played well in the first half, tackling hard and forcing errors. Hale's nine goal third quarter, with all players teaming effectively, put the result beyond doubt.

SCORE: HALE 20.17 defeated Wesley 6.10.

GOALS: Home 5, Tuckey 3, O'Meehan 3, Farmer 2, Foulkes 2, Vidovich 2, Gepp 1, Galbraith 1, Halnan 1.

BEST: Johnstone, Gepp, O'Meehan, Tuckey, Home, Thew.

HALE V SCOTCH

Hale and Scotch fought out another high standard game. Well served by their rucks and rovers, Scotch opened up a three goal lead half way through the final quarter. Hale then played their best football since Aquinas in winning by seven points.

Chris Johnstone, beaten in the centre, proved his value by kicking all four of the last quarter goals. It was, though, an even team effort, the back line's best game, and an impressive end to the season.

SCORE: HALE 12.7 defeated Scotch 11.6.

GOALS: Johnstone 4, Home 2, O'Meehan 2, Farmer 1, Tuckey 1, McNeil 1, Goyder 1.

BEST: Marsh, Halnan, Storey, Lill, Tuckey, Home, Johnstone.

ATHLETICS

The 1977 Athletics season was most disappointing not only in that we finished in seventh place for the first time in nine years, but there also seemed to be a decline in attitude throughout the school. On the day our athletes gave of their best but could not match the improved performances of other schools like Christ Church and Wesley. These schools have certainly taken a more 'professional' line in this field and if we are to match them in future a good look at our approach is required.

Once again Aquinas dominated and achieved their twelfth victory in thirteen years. Trinity seemed to get away to a very bad start and as a consequence were never the threat that everybody thought they would be, while Christ Church made a great improvement to move from seventh last year to a creditable third.

Hale's performance was mirrored in the fact that we did not win a single first division event although we had a number of good first division place-getters and second division winners. Probably our best competitors on the day were C.J.B. Seed, J.A. Morrison, D.J. Walder (who set school records in the open 3000m, under 15 800m and under 15 1500m respectively) and G.L. Kennedy who was outstanding in the sprint events.

Many people are involved with athletics at

Hale and to these, and to D.F. Tuckey (captain) and C.J.B. Seed (vice-captain) go my appreciations for their contributions with the hope that 1978 will prove more successful.

Cross-Country

A small, but enthusiastic group of athletes ran cross-country for Hale in second term. Competition was regularly held with Christ Church, Scotch, Guildford and Wesley. A different venue was chosen on each occasion with Hale hosting an event on one Saturday morning. G.M. Taylor proved to be a courageous competitor who attended all meetings and deserves a special mention. Congratulations are also due to D.T. Atkinson, from year nine, who ran all season against open competition. The interest displayed by Hale, and the other schools may see this sport become a regular competition in the future.

The Road to Pinjarra

Rising at 7.15, had we known what we were in for we might well have stayed in bed that day. There was an air of excitement (and apprehension) in the tog room as we dressed and shuffled off to breakfast. Matron seemed unhappy, (we were only half an hour late), so we quickly finished eating and set off for Armadale.

Arriving at nine o'clock we found that staff and old boys teams ready and raring to go. There were six teams in all: Staff, Faulkner, Loton, Wilson and two old boy sides.

Mr. Macmillan gave the starting orders, "There will be two commands, on your marks and then the gun will fire. Competitors are reminded to stay in their lanes and there will be no passing where there are double white lines." And so the struggle began.

Mr. Harris took the lead from the start and could not be overhauled despite furious changing of runners by other sides. After ten miles, Loton led Wilson and Faulkner with the Staff and old boy teams long gone. A few miles later Faulkner caught Wilson and from then on these two houses were locked in battle for last place.

The Williamson-led old boys team had drawn ahead of the staff at this stage and the stewards were kept busy investigating the Riseborough team's visual changes!

Apparently sighting the previous runner was the signal adapted instead of touching, with the result that the team often had two men running.

Sixty four kilometres finally passed and the Williamson brigade triumphed despite the efforts of Mr. Truscott who proved to be an expert at running uphill, and Messrs. Gray, Jordan and Biddle who all seemed suited to a shorter distance. Loton was the first house to finish, followed by Faulkner and Wilson only ten yards behind. A barbecue was held, to cap off a great day and everyone hobbled home declaring they would be there next year.

Old Boys Report

The 1976-77 year has been dominated by the Bill Altorfer Testimonial Dinner held in April. Much has been said and written about the dinner but all who attended will agree it was a memorable occasion. The August edition of the Old Haleian magazine has devoted considerable space to this event. I know Bill would have liked to have been here today. Fortunately or unfortunately, he is currently overseas brushing up on his geography!

Your committee worked hard throughout the year on many other functions including Boat Race Day, Winter Sports Day, Social after last Home Game, Golf Day (incidentally we were runners-up in the PSA Competition), Old Boys Day today and the Country Dinner to be held at York on the 29th and 30th October.

Outside the Social field much effort has been expended in producing the Old Haleian and finalising the format to substantially expand the Endowment Fund. With respect to the Endowment Fund, I would appeal to all of you to participate in building up the Fund so that it may play a greater role in fulfilling the ever-increasing requirements of a School like Hale. Arrangements have been made to have available today Bank Forms which, if authorised by you, will result in annual amounts being paid from your Bank Account direct to the Fund. I know you will support this scheme — it is designed as a continual programme, thereby avoiding the necessity to have individual high pressure fund raising ventures.

Already through this fund, a large marquee has been presented to the School. You will no doubt see it when we retire to the pool area in a short while! But the marquee is but a drop in the Association — we need the capacity to do greater things as and when required. Only with the support of all Old Boys will this occur — I urge you to give generously.

As you will see when the Treasurer presents his Report, the finance of your Association is in a healthy position. This has been achieved by exercising better budgeting by the Social Committee and the wise investments made by previous Committees.

I would like to record my appreciation to the Committee for their hard work during the year. Like all Associations, it requires special efforts by some members to ensure the Association continues to be successful. It is very pleasing to know that almost all of your Committee wish to stand again for the coming year. I wish them every success.

TIM HANTKE
PRESIDENT
